A Pakistan naval warship, PNS Hunain, collided with an Indian Navy warship in international waters, about 220 km east of Oman in the Arabian Sea on Tuesday.

The Ministry of External Affairs on Wednesday summoned the Charge d'Affaires of the Pakistan High Commission and lodged a strong protest.

The Indian warship — its name has so far not been made public — was en route to take part in “Operation Urja Suraksha”. The operation entails escorting India-destined crude and LNG vessels as they exit the Gulf of Oman. The operation is on since the West Asia crisis escalated in March.

On Tuesday evening, PNS Hunain closed in at high speed, sources said, adding that “it was manoeuvring in an unprofessional and unsafe manner”. This led to a collision. No damage was reported to the Indian warship. PNS Hunain — a 98-metre-long,

NEW DELHI, SEPTEMBER 16

The collision between warships of the Indian and Pakistani navies in the Arabian Sea on Tuesday is the first major peacetime naval incident between the two countries in about 15 years. However, several more serious incidents involving the two militaries in recent decades had the potential to escalate but did not.

The last time warships of the two nuclear-armed nations collided at sea was in July 2011. PNS Babar had collided with INS Godavari in the Gulf of Aden, South of Yemen.

The incident was later raised in Parliament. Then Defence Minister AK Antony, answering questions in August 2011, said INS Godavari, on an anti-piracy mission in the Gulf of Aden, was close to merchant vessel MV Suez, which had earlier been hijacked, and tried to establish communication.

Over 150 armed cadres of the banned Communist Party of India (Maoist) had ambushed a Congress convoy at Jhiram Ghati in Chhattisgarh's Bastar district on May 25, 2013, killing 27 persons and almost wiping out the state party leadership. As many as 38 persons were injured in the incident.

The attack took place as Congress leaders were returning after holding a “Parivartan Rally”. Among those killed were Mahendra Karma, who was instrumental in founding the banned anti-Maoist militia Salwa Judum; state Congress chief Nand Kumar Patel and his son Dinesh; and senior party leader and former MLA Uday Mudliyar.

According to the NIA chargesheet, the attack was meticulously planned as part of the banned CPI (Maoist)'s tactical counter-offensive campaign. Maoist commanders conspired during meetings in early 2013 to eliminate “class enemies”, with Mahendra Karma among the main targets.

A Division Bench of Justices Nitin Wasudeo Sambre and Amit Sharma asked Additional Solicitor General Chetan Sharma to obtain instructions from the government on whether any policy was being contemplated to deal with what a PIL describes as “engagement-maximising” and “addiction-causing” architecture used by social media platforms.

CHANDIGARH, SEPTEMBER 16

After proving their mettle in combat duties on the ground, Army dogs are now being trained for airborne operations, enabling them to be parachuted from aircraft directly into battle zones.

Displaying precision and combat readiness, a paratrooper undertook a tandem parachute jump over the Behat drop zone in central India with a dog handler and his combat canine, all carrying a full combat load.

Drills being conducted by Central Command

According to the Army, the jump is believed to be among the first instances of a tandem descent involving a dog handler and his canine, building upon earlier free-fall jumps undertaken with the dog. “A remarkable testament to trust, teamwork and the unbreakable bond between soldier and canine, mission-ready, together,” the Central Command said.

The militaries of some countries have dogs that are trained for airborne operations and participate in missions with the Special Forces. In fact, combat dogs had accompanied US SEALs during the raid to kill Osama bin Laden in Pakistan.

According to military experts, dogs go through a specialised selection and conditioning process, which assesses their temperament and physique, for airborne duties. Dogs do not parachute independently, but are attached to their handlers, who are also qualified paratroopers, with a special harness. They are also taught to recognise hand signals and are made to wear protective

AMRITSAR, SEPTEMBER 16

The Counter Intelligence wing of the Amritsar police has seized 27 kg of heroin from the border belt after busting a smuggling module and arresting four persons.

With this, the total heroin recovery has touched 228.4 kg in the two border ranges of Amritsar (123.4 kg) and Ferozepur (105 kg) since August 1. In addition, 5.9 kg of ICE and around 7 kg of opium smuggled from Pakistan have also been recovered.

Punjab Director General of Police (DGP) Gaurav Yadav said preliminary investigations had revealed that the accused arrested with 27 kg of heroin were operating in coordination with a Dubai-based operative identified as Karan Chheharta.

The accused were also found to be using encrypted communication platforms to remain in contact with their handlers, apparently to evade detection, the DGP said. He said they had received specific information that the accused had collected a drone-dropped consignment of heroin and arms from the Attari border area and were headed to deliver it to another party near Adda Khasa. He said an FIR had been registered at the State Special Operation Cell (SSOC) in Amritsar. Further investigation was underway to establish the complete backward and forward linkages and identify all persons involved in the smuggling network, the DGP said.

Those arrested have been identified as Vishal Singh, alias Shalu, Manpreet Singh, alias Sunny, and Smartpreet Singh, all residents of Bhalla Colony in Chheharta, and Karan Singh of Bhusse vil-

Apart from the contraband, the total seizures since August 1 also include 80 pistols, two AK-47 rifles, a drone and an IED, highlighting the drug-and-arms trafficking networks operating along the International Border.

Director General of Police Yadav said the Punjab Police remained committed to maintaining strict vigil against cross-border smuggling and taking decisive action against drug trafficking, illegal arms supply and organised criminal networks.

Rural service condition relaxed for college teachers for 1 year

TRIBUNE NEWS SERVICE

KARNAL, SEPTEMBER 16

In a major relief to government college teachers, the Haryana Government has relaxed the mandatory rural service condition for faculty members whose promotion cases are pending under the Career Advancement Scheme (CAS).

The relaxation will remain in force for one year, providing eligible teachers a window to process their career advancement cases without fulfilling the rural service requirement.

The Additional Chief Secretary, Higher Education Department, Haryana, in a letter issued on September

Move to benefit around 1,400 teachers awaiting career advancement 15, directed principals of all government colleges in the state to implement the decision. The mandatory rural service condition for teaching faculty concerned in CAS promotion cases has been relaxed for one year from the date of issuance of the order.

The Haryana Government College Teachers' Association (HGCTA) welcomed the decision, saying it would help clear long-pending CAS cases of around 1,400 teachers awaiting promotion to senior scale and selection grades.

Dr Rajesh Ranjha, state president of the association and associate professor of History at Government PG College, Karnal, said the relaxation was a long-pending demand of government college teachers.

"The relaxation is expected to benefit around 1,400 teachers during the one-year period by removing the rural-service requirement as a hurdle in the processing of their CAS cases," he said.

He said the association had raised the issue with Education Minister Mahipal Dhanda during an interaction held in Karnal in July.

Dr Ranjha thanked Chief Minister Nayab Singh Saini, Education Minister Mahipal Dhandha and officials of the Higher Education Department for the decision.

"Our association will continue to pursue pending issues concerning college teachers through dialogue with the government," he further added.

Dr Rashmi Singh, head of the Department of Mass Communication at Government PG College, Karnal, said, "It was due to long efforts of the association that the government has issued relaxed mandatory rural service for one year."

Kurukshetra DC Vishram Kumar addresses farmers at Shahabad grain market on Wednesday.

Seeking advance procurement, BKU threatens to block NH-44

NITISH SHARMA
TRIBUNE NEWS SERVICE

KURUKSHETRA, SEPTEMBER 16

Seeking advance paddy procurement in the state, the Bhartiya Kisan Union (Charuni) has threatened to block the Delhi-Ambala National Highway in Shahabad on September 22.

With paddy produce beginning to arrive at grain markets, farmers had requested the state government to start paddy procurement from September 15 instead of the planned date of October 1. With the demand not being met, hundreds of farmers under the banner of BKU (Charuni) on Wednesday gathered at the Shahabad grain market and threatened to block the NH-44.

Meanwhile, Kurukshetra DC Vishram Kumar Meena also reached the market and managed to persuade the union leaders.

Union announces blockade plan for Shahabad on Sept 22

BKU (Charuni) president Gurnam Singh Charuni said, "Despite repeated requests, the government has failed to start the procurement and the farmers are left with no other choice but to start an agitation. Every year the paddy farmers are forced to block the National Highway to get the paddy procurement started."

"Moreover, there have been complaints from several grain markets about farmers not being allowed to bring their produce for drying," he added.

Charuni said the DC informed them that the state government had sought permission from the Centre to start procurement from September 20. "The union has decided to block the NH-44 in Shahabad on September 22 if procurement fails to start," he added.

The DC added that the farmers had been apprised about the procedure, saying, "Since the paddy is procured on MSP for the Centre through the agencies, the Haryana government has already sent a request to the central government seeking permission to start paddy procurement from September 20."

"The gunny bags will be distributed soon to the procurement agencies. A decision regarding reopening the Meri Fasal Mera Byora portal is also expected to be taken in a day or two. We have assured the farmers that all efforts are being made to ensure a smooth paddy procurement season. The farmers have been urged to resolve all the issues through dialogue," he added.

ROHTAK, SEPTEMBER 16

The PGIMS, Rohtak, which lags behind several hospitals in the state in treating patients under the Ayushman Bharat scheme, has initiated measures to increase the number of beneficiaries treated at the institute.

The PGIMS authorities have constituted a dedicated Ayushman Cell in the office of the Medical Superintendent and deployed 15 house surgeons across various departments to streamline work related to the Pradhan Mantri Jan Arogya Yojana-Ayushman Bharat (PMJAY-AB) scheme.

The scheme provides cashless coverage of up to Rs 5 lakh annually to eligible beneficiaries.

According to an office order issued by the authorities, the move aims to ensure timely registration of Ayushman beneficiaries and procurement of required implants and other consumables so that patient care remains

"More than 8,000 patients from various districts of Haryana and neighboring states visit the OPD and Trauma Centres every day for medical care. A significant number of these patients are beneficiaries of the Ayushman Bharat scheme and require surgeries, specialised procedures, and other essential treatments," said a PGIMS official.

The newly constituted Ayushman Cell will comprise the Deputy Medical Superintendent, PMJAY-AB; a nodal officer from the department concerned; two clerks/data entry operators/assistants; and one representative each from the purchase and accounts sections.

In a separate order, the authorities have shifted 15 house surgeons on administrative grounds, with immediate effect and until further orders, to look after Ayushman scheme-related work in different departments.

The house surgeons have been assigned to departments including medicine, general surgery, obstetrics and gynaecology, orthopaedics, radiotherapy, paediatrics, ENT, oncology, ophthalmology, psychiatry, PCCM, skin and VD, cardiology, cardiac surgery, neurology, neurosurgery, respiratory medicine, sports medicine, urology, plastic and reconstructive surgery, neonatology, paediatric surgery, gastroenterology and nephrology.

The order stated that where a house surgeon had been assigned more than one department, the official would handle the scheme-related work of all allotted departments in coordination with the departments concerned.

Heads of departments have also been asked to prepare duty rosters for the house surgeons through mutual coordination, keeping in view the requirements of the respective departments and ensuring proper utilisation of their services for Ayushman-related work.

Congress issues notice of disqualification to suspended Ratia MLA

BHARTESH SINGH THAKUR
TRIBUNE NEWS SERVICE

CHANDIGARH, SEPTEMBER 16

The Haryana Congress has issued a show-cause notice to suspended Ratia MLA Jarnail Singh, asking why proceedings for his disqualification should not be initiated.

The notice, issued by Congress Legislative Party Chief Whip BB Batra on September 13, alleges that Singh acted against party directions and raised slogans against the Congress along with members of the ruling BJP during the monsoon session of the Vidhan Sabha.

Jarnail Singh was among five Congress MLAs suspended from the party on April 16 for voting in favour of a BJP-backed Independent candidate in the Rajya Sabha elections held on March 16.

The latest controversy relates to proceedings on August 27, when the Congress had moved an adjournment motion over the alleged Rs 657-crore bank scam. Batra had directed all suspended MLAs to remain present in the House and support the motion.

According to the notice, while Congress MLAs stood in support of the motion, Jarnail Singh displayed a poster related to the 1984

Alleges he sided with ruling party during House proceedings anti-Sikh riots, targeting Rohtak MP Deepender Hooda. Congress legislators alleged that the poster had been provided by Haryana Sports Minister Gaurav Gautam.

The notice further stated that available photo and video material showed Singh carrying the placard to the Treasury Benches and raising slogans alongside ruling party members. A photograph of Singh standing with Minister Krishan Bedi while holding the poster was also attached.

'Conduct raised serious question'

Batra said Singh's conduct raised a "serious question" as to whether he had voluntarily given up membership of the Congress under Paragraph 2(1)(a) of the Tenth Schedule of the Constitution.

Citing the Supreme Court's 1994 judgment in Ravi S Naik vs Union of India, the notice said voluntary resignation from a party could be inferred from a legislator's conduct even in the absence of a formal resignation. Jarnail Singh has been given 30 days to submit his reply.

First soil-carbon payments reach 2,550 farmers in Punjab, Haryana

SURYA S PILLAI
TRIBUNE NEWS SERVICE

NEW DELHI, SEPTEMBER 16

India's agricultural carbon market has moved from policy discussions to farm-level payments, with more than 2,500 farmers in Punjab and Haryana receiving over Rs 2.9 crore for adopting regenerative farming practices.

The first payments were released at Punjab Agricultural University (PAU), Ludhiana, where M L Jat, Director General, Indian Council of Agricultural Research (ICAR), initiated direct benefit transfers to the farmers.

"The payments are part of 'Aadi', a Grow Indigo farmer-carbon programme launched in 2019, with technical guidance from ICAR. Farmers participating in the programme adopted practices such as direct-seeded rice (DSR), reduced tillage and crop-residue management between 2019 and 2022," an official of the Ministry of Agriculture told The Tribune.

The official said the greenhouse-gas reductions and increases in soil carbon resulting from these practices were measured and independently verified before carbon credits were issued.

Aadi is the first flagship farmer-carbon programme in India to issue agricultural carbon credits under the Ver-ra VM0042 methodology. The programme covers more than 2 million acres and over one lakh farmers across seven states. The payments provide an additional economic incentive for practices aimed at improving soil health, conserving water and reducing crop-residue burning.

HC flags cops skipping court summons, warrants

SAURABH MALIK
TRIBUNE NEWS SERVICE

CHANDIGARH, SEPTEMBER 16

The Punjab and Haryana High Court has admonished police officials for repeatedly ignoring court summons and warrants, observing that their conduct showed "dereliction of duty" and a "dismissive approach" towards the execution of court warrants. The Bench also faulted trial courts for failing to use the coercive processes available under the BNSS.

Taking serious note of the issue, Justice NS Shekhawat directed the Gurugram District and Sessions Judge to convene a meeting of all judicial officers to apprise them of the procedure under the BNSS. He also ordered the

Gurugram police chief asked to furnish five-year data on officials facing warrants

Gurugram Commissioner of Police to file an affidavit detailing police officials against whom bailable or non-bailable warrants had been issued during the past five years.

"This court has noticed that in every district, hundreds of police officials, who are bound to assist in the administration of justice, are not appearing before various courts of law, which actually bothers the conscious of this court," the Bench noted.

The observations and directions came while hearing a petition seeking quashing of an FIR registered on December 20, 2016, at Udyog Vihar police station for cheating and another offence under Section 318(4) of the BNSS and Section 66(D) of the Information Technology Act, 2000.

Justice Shekhawat noted that the police took four years to complete the investigation and the challan was presented before a Judicial Magistrate First Class in Gurugram on December 16, 2019. Charge was finally ordered to be framed on October 12, 2022. The trial did not progress even after charges were framed.

The Bench recorded that police officials locally posted and witnesses did not appear despite service of summons. Even non-bailable warrants were "surprisingly" received back unexecuted. The court said such failures could not be taken lightly and showed "dereliction of duty" and a "dismissive approach" towards execution of warrants.

Justice Shekhawat simultaneously faulted the trial court for not enforcing the statutory mechanism under Chapter VI of the BNSS, which deals with "Processes to Compel Appearance". The trial court had shown "undue kindness" to police officials by overlooking the mandatory provisions.

"If any police official had chosen not to appear despite service of summons, trial court was bound to issue coercive process against such police officials to ensure that trial proceeds in the present case expeditiously and justice is delivered to the parties, at the earliest," the court held.

The District and Sessions Judge, Gurugram, was directed to convene a meeting of all judicial officers and apprise them of Chapter VI of the BNSS. The judicial officers were also directed to "take strict action" against police officials/witnesses who failed to appear despite service of summons/warrants.

The Gurugram Commissioner of Police was directed to file an affidavit giving details of officials against whom bailable or non-bailable warrants had been issued during the preceding five years.

Jatauli reclaims its name, drops colonial 'Hailey' tag

SUMEDHA SHARMA
TRIBUNE NEWS SERVICE

PATAUDI (GURUGRAM), SEPT 15

A small hamlet on Gurugram's western edge is steadily erasing a name it was saddled with more than a century ago. The state government's decision to drop "Hailey" from its local government college marks the latest step in a longer push to scrub the colonial-era tag from the area altogether.

The Government College, Jatauli Haily Mandi (Gurugram), will now be called Government College, Jatauli Mandi (Gurugram), according to an official letter from the Additional Chief Secretary to the Haryana Government, Higher Education Department, addressed to the college principal. The college received the communication on September 14, with the change effective immediately.

The word "Hailey" dates back to Malcolm Hailey, a British governor of the colonial era, after whom a bungalow built near the old railway station area was named. A grain market that later grew around the site came to be called "Hailey Mandi" — a name residents say has clung to the region ever since, despite having no real connection to its identity.

According to social activists, the entire Mandi area falls under hadbast (tehsil-wise revenue record) number 7, where it is officially recorded as Jatauli, not Hailey Mandi. They argue that every government institution carrying the area's name should reflect that revenue identity instead. They said efforts would now continue to strip "Hailey" from other local institutions still carrying it.

Master Surendra Singh Chauhan and former captain Janak Chauhan recalled that when the renaming push first gathered steam, "Jatauli" was added to the municipal council's name as an early step.

"While civic authority took first step but with the biggest landmark the college dropping it the real change has set in. Now all major institutions and buildings in area will drop it," said Chauhan.

Cong hits the ground to rebuild base

den party say the develop- ment has rejuvenated the morale of the cadres. After a string of meet- ings across the state in 78 of the 90 Assembly seg- ments, state Congress incharge Sanjay Dutt said the process of seeking feedback from party work- ers on improving the organisation and forming district and other units had been completed. “Now the party is taking up local issues and raising them prominently at the block, district and state levels. Our aim is to win back the confidence of people as every section of society is unhappy with the BJP government in the state and the Centre. Everyone is looking towards the Congress as an alternative,” Dutt said. On whether the exercise would bring leaders of a divided Congress on one platform, Dutt said all of them had come together whenever required. “Besides Haryana, Kumari Selja and Ran-deep Surjewala also have the responsibility of look- ing after poll-bound Uttarakhand and Gujarat, respectively, and are therefore working there as well. Former CM Bhupin- der Hooda is also the Leader of Opposition. Despite this, all leaders are united when it comes to the party,” he claimed. After taking feedback from grassroots workers, the state Congress is beginning its block-level conventions. The aim is to apprise workers of the par- ty’s policies and strategy and take up local issues. “We are holding block-lev- el conventions in 149 of 180 blocks across the state. Around 100 blocks are like- ly to be covered by the end of September. The idea is to strengthen the cadre, prop- agate the party’s policies and oppose the anti-people decisions of the BJP gov- ernment,” said Rao Naren- der Singh, president of the state Congress. Sirsa MP Kumari Selja said the cadre gets energised when they feel they are involved. “This is a good beginning,” she said. Former Hisar MP and AICC Foreign Affairs Department vice-president Brijendra Singh, who covered all 90 Assembly segments through his ‘Sadbhav Yatra’, also sees a visible change. “There was no organisa- tional setup in the past 12 years and directions were issued from residences of leaders while meetings were also held there. After the formation of units, the party has its offices where leaders and workers from every faction can come without hesitation, sit and discuss, which was neces- sary to make the party the main driver,” he said. While leaders are on one page about the beginning made through Assembly- segment and block-level meetings, they maintain that factionalism cannot be wished away and the party top brass would have to make more con- certed efforts to bring the factions together.

Financial lapses in MGNREGA scheme come to fore

TRIBUNE NEWS SERVICE

ROHTAK, SEPTEMBER 16

The Sampla police have regis- tered an FIR against a MGN- REGA mate (a field level work- er) for alleged financial irregularities in the imple- mentation of the rural employ- ment scheme in Samchana village. An official inquiry has estimated the suspected loss to the public exchequer at around Rs 1.25 crore.

The FIR registered on Monday names Parveen

Kumar, a worker associated with MGNREGA works in Gram Panchayat Samchana. The case has been registered under Sections 120-B (crimi- nal conspiracy), 409 (crimi- nal breach of trust), 420 (cheating), 468 (forgery) and 471 (using a forged docu- ment) of the IPC on the com- plaint of Assistant Project Officer and Programme offi- cer (MGNREGA) Suresh Devi in this respect.

A complaint had alleged large-scale irregularities in MGNREGA payments. According to the details, sev- eral persons whose names fig- ured in wage payments claimed that they had never worked under the scheme. It also referred to a payment of Rs 10,395 in the name of a per- son who had died years ago.

The Ombudsman, MGN- REGA, Rohtak, had recom- mended registration of an FIR against the officials of Panchayat Department posted at Sampla, and other officials allegedly involved in the matter. The Ombuds- man had observed that simi- lar irregularities could have occurred in 356 cases and tentatively assessed the financial loss at around Rs 1.25 crore.

The inquiry found a recur- ring pattern in bank trans- actions. MGNREGA pay- ments credited through PFMS into the accounts of several beneficiaries were followed by transfers to Parveen Kumar’s mobile/UPI number.

Ram Rahim returns to jail after 21-day furlough

SIRSA, SEPTEMBER 16

Dera Sacha Sauda chief Gurmeet Ram Rahim Singh returned to Rohtak’s Sunar- ia jail on Wednesday after completing his 21-day fur- lough. His convoy, which included two Land Cruisers, two Fortuners and two Scor- pios, left the Dera headquar- ters in Sirsa around 3 pm amid tight security. Ram Rahim travelled in one of the Land Cruisers.

Security arrangements were tightened around the Dera as his furlough ended. The movement of followers had started declining from Tuesday evening, with few- er people seen around the Dera, which had witnessed heavy footfall during the past week.

Ram Rahim had arrived at the Dera on August 26 after being granted his 17th tem- porary release in nine years. Earlier this year, he was granted a 40-day parole in January and a 30-day parole in May. — OC

Guv sets aside Murthal varsity EC nominations

Move follows objections over alleged violation of University Act

SONEPAT, SEPTEMBER 16

In a setback to the adminis- tration of Deenbandhu Chhotu Ram University of Science and Technology (DCRUST), Murthal, the Chancellor-cum-Governor of Haryana has set aside the university’s February 27, 2025, orders nominating members to its Executive Council (EC).

The Chancellor has direct- ed the university to nominate eligible members strictly in accordance with the estab- lished principles of rotation and seniority.

The university administra- tion had nominated five pro- fessors to the EC on Febru- ary 27 last year. They included the Deans of the Faculties of Architecture, Urban and Town Planning; Management Studies; and Education, besides Professor Manoj Kumar Duhan of the Department of Electron- ics and Communication and Professor Ashok Kumar Sharma of the Department of Chemistry.

The Deenbandhu Chhotu Ram University Teachers’ Association subsequently raised objections, alleging that the constitution of the EC was in violation of the University Act and statutes.

According to the associa- tion, the University Act pro- vides for nomination of three deans by the Vice-Chancellor through rotation, in accor- dance with the prescribed pro- cedure. It also provides for nomination of two professors, other than deans, by rotation on the basis of seniority.

It alleged that the universi- ty had again nominated the Deans of Architecture, Urban and Town Planning; Manage- ment Studies; and Educa- tion, ignoring the turn of the Deans of Engineering and Technology, Information Technology and Computer Science, and Humanities and Social Sciences under the rotation principle.

Three university professors also approached the Punjab and Haryana High Court, alleging violations of the Uni- versity Act and statutes in the nomination of EC members. Following the court’s direc- tions, the Chancellor con- ducted a personal hearing on August 7 and subsequently issued the order to the Vice-Chancellor on Tuesday.

Several attempts were made to contact DCRUST Vice-Chancellor Prof SP Singh for his response, but he did not respond.

19.5L applications pour in for 10L new ration cards in state

RUCHIKA M KHANNA
TRIBUNE NEWS SERVICE

CHANDIGARH, SEPTEMBER 16

Punjab has witnessed a massive surge in applications for new ration cards, with 19.50 lakh applicants from across the state filing online applications. The number is nearly double the 10 lakh new ration cards the state government had announced it would issue this year. Official sources said the applications represented nearly 40 lakh new beneficiaries.

Punjab currently has around 41.47 lakh ration-card holders and 1.54 crore beneficiaries, according to the state's ration-card management system.

The surge follows the Punjab Government's decision to relax the eligibility conditions for ration cards earlier this year. The government issued a notification on March 11, widening the eligibility criteria under the Smart Ration Card Scheme.

The relaxation extended the scheme to sections of relatively well-off households that were earlier excluded under norms based on the Centre's criteria. The measures included raising the annual income ceiling for eligibility to Rs 8 lakh from Rs 1.80 lakh and making households possessing vehicles and land eligible in certain circumstances, subject to other prescribed criteria.

CM Bhagwant Mann announced on July 22 that 10 lakh new ration cards would be issued. Applications for new ration cards and inclusion of family members were invited from July 22 to August 11.

"Since the number of applications is almost double the number of new ration cards we can issue, a scheme to prepare a merit list of applicants has been devised. It is based on this merit list that we will accommodate 7-10 lakh eligible beneficiaries," a senior officer in the Food and Supplies Department told The Tribune.

The attraction of getting new ration cards is significant as holders are entitled to benefits under both state and Centre's schemes. While the Punjab Government provides ration kits under the Meri Raso scheme, the Centre provides 5 kg of wheat per beneficiary every month under the food subsidy programme.

Ludhiana recorded the highest number of applications at 2.25 lakh, followed by Amritsar (1.81 lakh), Jalandhar (1.42 lakh), Gurdaspur (1.39 lakh),

BKU seeks White Paper on Ravi water flowing into Pak

TRIBUNE NEWS SERVICE

CHANDIGARH, SEPTEMBER 16

With the Punjab Government having agreed to convene an Assembly session following its agreement with farmer organisations, the BKU (Ekta-Ugrahan) on Wednesday demanded that the government should use the session to table a White Paper on the quantum of water in the Ravi flowing into Pakistan and the reasons for its non-utilisation.

The union said the document should specify the quantum of water available for utilisation, the status of projects aimed at harnessing it, the expenditure incurred so far and responsibility for delays in completing the projects.

Union's state president Joginder Singh Ugrahan, state secretary Shingara Singh Mann and senior vice-president Jhanda Singh issued a joint statement, saying the issue assumed significance as Punjab continued to debate its riparian rights and water allocation while, according to them, a substantial quantity of Ravi water remained unutilised.

Citing the report of the Standing Committee on Water Resources tabled in the Lok Sabha in July 2022, the farmer leaders claimed that only part of the water available to Punjab was being utilised and the remaining quantity was flowing into Pakistan. They demanded that the Punjab Government should place the complete data before the Assembly and explain the steps taken to utilise the water.

The union claimed that at the time of Partition and during negotiations leading to the Indus Waters Treaty, about 11.50 MAF of Ravi water was flowing towards Pakistan. Of that, it said, 6.971 MAF was measured at Madhopur Headworks, while another 4.549 MAF came from streams joining the Ravi downstream of the headworks. The BKU said the latter component included water from various rivulets and argued that it should be examined separately from the 33 MAF allocated to India under the treaty.

The union questioned the pace of work on projects such as the Ujh Multipurpose Project and Shahpur Kandi Project, saying delays had resulted in river waters continuing to flow into Pakistan. It said the proposed White Paper should explain why projects identified decades ago for conserving Ravi water had not been completed on schedule.

ED raids 'fake' call centres in Patiala, Mohali dists; 66 phones, 13 laptops seized

TRIBUNE NEWS SERVICE

PATIALA, SEPTEMBER 16

The Enforcement Directorate (ED) conducted raids at two showrooms of DM Web Solutions in Urban Estate-II, Patiala, as part of its operation against fake call centres, cyber frauds and money laundering. Similar raids were conducted in Mohali and Pune.

The raids reportedly continued for about 22 hours in Patiala before teams sealed the premises. The agency seized 66 mobile phones, 13 laptops, hard disks and other communication equipment, besides cash.

An IELTS coaching centre was being run from the two showrooms during the day-time, but with a different name. The office was earlier operating from the Chhoti Baradari area but shifted base to the Urban Estate some months ago.

According to the ED, the two call centres in Patiala were found to be engaged in cheating and extorting money from US nationals. Data recovered from mobile phones and a laptop used by the operators contained details of the syndicate's modus operandi and distribution of proceeds generated from the fraud.

The Mohali premises were allegedly being used by the mastermind to coordinate and control the call centres in Patiala. Multiple digital devices containing data related to the operations were recovered from the premises.

Sources said a wider angle of the raid and the probe was to identify the money trail and recover the amount laundered through various international syndicates.

Govt forms panel to engage Akal Takht on sacrilege law

TRIBUNE NEWS SERVICE

CHANDIGARH, SEPTEMBER 16

The Punjab Government on Wednesday constituted a seven-member coordination committee to engage with the Akal Takht over the Jaagat Jot Sri Guru Granth Sahib Satkar (Amendment) Act, signalling a fresh attempt to break the deadlock over the contentious legislation.

The move comes after the government's earlier response to objections raised by the Akal Takht failed to resolve differences. The Takht had insisted on changes to certain provisions of the Act and subsequently formed its own five-member committee to hold discussions with the government.

The seven-member government panel will coordinate with the Akal Takht-appointed committee.

The committee, constituted by the Department of Home Affairs and Justice, comprises former Akal Takht Jathedar Giani Ragbir Singh, Damdami Taksal chief Sant Harnam Singh Khalsa, Sant Baba Sewa Singh of Rampur Khera, Justice Jaspal Singh (retd), Justice Gurbir Singh (retd), former IPS officer and former Punjab Public Service Commission Chairman Jatinder Singh Aulakh, and Law Officer PreetINDER Paul Singh.

CM's wife sues Majithia, Harsimrat, Khaira for criminal defamation

RAMKRISHAN UPADHYAY

CHANDIGARH SEPTEMBER 16

Dr Gurpreet Kaur, wife of Punjab Chief Minister Bhagwant Mann, on Wednesday filed a criminal defamation complaint against SAD leaders Bikram Singh Majithia and Harsimrat Kaur Badal, and Congress leader Sukhpal Singh Khaira, stating that they made false allegations against her.

The complaint was filed in a local court under Sections 210 and 222 of the Bharatiya Nagarik Suraksha Sanhita for the offence of criminal defamation under Section 356 of the Bharatiya Nyaya Sanhita.

Kaur, a qualified medical professional, said she enjoyed a high reputation in society and that the allegations caused damage to her personal and social standing.

She said Majithia had initiated a vilification campaign against her at a press conference in Chandigarh on September 1. She alleged that the SAD leader made sensational, fabricated and unfounded claims that she sought cash through a relative to influence the state machinery to protect a rape accused. She alleged that he circulated false audio recordings, photographs and CCTV footage, claiming they showed a financial negotiation involving people close to her.

Kaur alleged that Khaira, a staunch opponent of CM Mann, also posted, published and circulated false and highly defamatory comments, graphic posters and videos about her across multiple social media platforms, including X.

The complainant also accused Majithia's sister Harsimrat of levelling similar allegations on social media platforms and national news channels.

Kaur alleged that the accused portrayed her as a person helping a rape accused for money, tarnishing her reputation and personal identity.

She asked the court to summon the accused to reply on her charge and punish them for the offence of criminal defamation.

Earlier, a Chandigarh court had temporarily restrained Justice Ranjit Singh (retd), Majithia and Khaira from publishing, circulating or making any unverified defamatory content pertaining to the alleged bribe demand involving Kaur till further orders.

BSP-BJP clash in Hoshiarpur

HOSHIARPUR, SEPTEMBER 16

The protest over the alleged vandalism of Dr BR Ambedkar's statue at Badhiya Kalan village in Mahilpur block turned into a political confrontation on Wednesday, with leaders of the BSP and BJP coming to blows. Former Union MoS and BJP leader Vijay Sampla sustained a nose injury during the altercation.

The protest had been organised by members of the SC community and BSP. The confrontation escalated after BJP leaders reached the stage. A heated exchange over the microphone reportedly led to a scuffle between the leaders of the two parties.

LONG ROAD FROM SURVEYS TO A SIX-STATE AGREEMENT

Kishau deal tilts in Himachal's favour

PRATIBHA CHAUHAN
TRIBUNE NEWS SERVICE

SHIMLA, SEPTEMBER 16 Himachal Pradesh has secured a favourable financial arrangement for the long-delayed 422-MW Kishau multipurpose project on the Tons river, with the state managing to avoid a construction liability of around Rs 800 crore while retaining the prospect of earning more than Rs 1,200 crore annually from the sale of its free power share.

An MoU for the project was signed in New Delhi on Tuesday by six partner states — Himachal Pradesh, Uttarakhand, Uttar Pradesh, Rajasthan, Haryana and Delhi — paving the way for the implementation of the project after years of disagreement over cost sharing.

Chief Minister Sukhinder Singh Sukhu has described the agreement as being in Himachal's interest. Under the arrangement, the state is expected to receive 1,000 million units of free power annually. At prevailing power rates, this could translate into revenue of over Rs 1,200 crore a year.

Himachal had strongly opposed bearing the con-

State escapes ₹800-cr construction burden & eyes over ₹1,200 cr annually from 1,000 mn units of free power struction cost, arguing that the project was primarily intended to meet the water requirements of Delhi, Rajasthan and Haryana. The state had maintained that it neither required the water from the Kishau reservoir nor needed to incur expenditure on a project whose principal benefits would accrue to the downstream states.

Under the earlier terms agreed during the previous BJP government, Himachal was to bear around Rs 800 crore towards construction despite not being a beneficiary of the project's water component. The estimated project cost, as per the detailed project report, is Rs 15,624 crore.

Himachal's continued opposition eventually resulted in the Centre agreeing in June this year to bear 90 per cent of the project cost. The remaining 10 per cent will be shared by the six partner states in accordance with the 1994 agreement.

Importantly, Himachal's share of the remaining construction cost will be borne by Delhi and Rajasthan in a 75:25 ratio, as the two states are the beneficiaries of water supplied from the Kishau reservoir.

The project, proposed on the Tons river, will have a storage capacity of 1,786 million cubic metres. Its construction is expected to lead to the displacement of nearly 5,000 families and submergence of about 3,000 hectares in Himachal and Uttarakhand. In Himachal, 2,092 families in eight villages of the Shillai area of Sirmaur are likely to be affected, while 3,406 families in nine villages of Uttarakhand face displacement.

The project will be executed by Kishau Corporation Ltd, in which Himachal Pradesh and Uttarakhand are equal shareholders. The Chief Secretaries of the two states will head the corporation for two-year terms on a rotational basis.

Kishau is one of three storage dams — along with Lakhwar and Renuka — proposed on tributaries of the Yamuna under the 1994 agreement among Uttar Pradesh, Rajasthan, Haryana, Himachal and Delhi for sharing Yamuna waters.

From 1940 idea to 2026 deal

THE Kishau project has been on the drawing board for more than eight decades. Conceived in 1940, it was first surveyed by the Punjab Government in 1944-45. The Uttar Pradesh Government resumed work on the proposal in 1962, leading to a preliminary project report being submitted to the Centre in 1965.

After examining the 1965 DPR, the Central Water Commission suggested replacing the proposed gravity arch dam with a rockfill dam because of a major geological fault. The Uttar Pradesh Irrigation Department subsequently submitted a revised DPR for a rock-fill dam to the CWC in 1978.

Geographical and geological complexities then forced a rethink of the site. The CWC cancelled the proposed site and recommended detailed geological studies at Atal, Sambarkheda and Morar. The Sambarkheda site was eventually found suitable for a 236-metre-high dam and a fresh DPR was prepared in 1988 and submitted to the CWC.

The project gained fresh momentum decades later when Himachal Pradesh and Uttarakhand signed an MoU on June 20, 2015. Kishau Corporation Ltd was subsequently incorporated on January 16, 2017, as a special purpose vehicle to execute the project.

Agreement sparks protest

PANKAJ SHARMA

NAHAN, SEPTEMBER 16 Fear of losing their ancestral homes and land brought residents of Kwanu and neighbouring villages in Uttarakhand onto the streets on Wednesday, a day after the Centre and six Yamuna basin states signed an agreement to move ahead with the long-pending Kishau multipurpose project.

The Kishau Bandh Sangharsh Samiti staged a protest at Kwanu in the Jaunsar-Bawar region of Uttarakhand in the presence of local MLA Pritam Singh Chauhan. Protesters burned effigies of the Central Government and the state government and raised slogans against the proposed dam.

For families living in the project-affected area, the Kishau project is not simply about a dam or water and power generation. It is about the possibility of being uprooted from land where their families have lived for generations.

"Why are people living in the hills being displaced to meet the water and electricity requirements of the plains?"

Residents take to streets, say plains cannot get water at the cost of their ancestral soil

A DEEP DIVIDE

- For residents of Kwanu and neighbouring villages in Uttarakhand's Jaunsar-Bawar region, the Kishau project has brought fear of losing homes, fields and ancestral land
- The Kishau Bandh Sangharsh Samiti protested against the proposed dam on Wednesday, burning effigies of the Centre and state government
- Protesters questioned why mountain communities should be displaced to meet the irrigation and drinking-water needs of the plains
- Samiti leaders said compensation could not replace ancestral land, homes and their traditional way of life
- They vowed to continue opposing displacement, saying they would not leave their ancestral soil residents asked during the protest, questioning why communities settled in the mountains should have to sacrifice their homes and land for the benefit of areas downstream. Kishau Bandh Sangharsh Samiti patron Munna Singh Rana, president Surya Pratap Singh and vice-president Narendra Singh Rana said the people of the affected area shared an ancestral and emotional bond with the mountains. "We are tribal people and generations of our families have lived in these mountains.

Our ancestors have lived here for generations. Now, suddenly, a dam is being proposed here to provide irrigation and drinking water to the plains, while we are being rendered homeless," they said. The Samiti leaders said compensation could not fully address the loss of ancestral land, homes and the traditional way of life of the affected families. "We may accept death, but we will not leave our soil," they said, asserting that the affected communities would continue to oppose displacement.

Pact result of Centre-led talks: MP

DHARAMSALA, SEPTEMBER 16 Hamirpur MP and former Union Minister Anurag Singh Thakur on Wednesday credited the Narendra Modi government with breaking the six-decade-long deadlock over the Kishau Multipurpose Project, saying an agreement among six states had been reached through Central government-led dialogue and consensus.

He was speaking to media-persons at Kangra airport on his arrival for a day-long tour of the district. Thakur said successive Congress governments at the Centre and in the states had failed to resolve the outstanding issues surrounding the project for nearly six decades. "Under the leadership of Prime Minister Narendra Modi, the Central government brought the participating states together to resolve their differences," he said.

He said the project had been accorded National Project status, with the Centre expected to bear about 90 per cent of its cost, while the remaining 10 per cent would be shared by the participating states. An arrangement had also been reached to share the financial burden linked to Himachal Pradesh's electricity component, he added.

"The project aims to provide irrigation to about 97,000 hectares of agricultural land and generate nearly 1,476 million units of clean hydropower," he said. — TNS

Price shock

Mundhe flags glaring gaps in hospital bills

FOR a patient lying on a hospital bed, an IV (intra-venous) set is not a matter of consumer choice. Neither is a syringe or a catheter. There is no opportunity to compare prices, bargain with the seller or walk away. This makes the Maharashtra Food and Drug Administration’s (FDA) findings on hospital consumables particularly disturbing. Under Commissioner Tukaram Mundhe, a state survey found an IV infusion set procured by a hospital for Rs 11.05 carrying an MRP of Rs 325 — a reported mark-up of 2,841%. A syringe bought for Rs 6.75 carried an MRP of Rs 57.20, while a catheter procured for Rs 29.41 had an MRP of Rs 310.

The figures do not establish that hospitals pocket the entire difference as profit; there are costs across the supply chain. But they expose an extraordinary lack of transparency in a sector where the consumer is at his most vulnerable. Importantly, Mundhe has sent the FDA’s findings and recommendations to the Centre, seeking a review of the pricing framework for medical devices and consideration of trade-margin caps or structured monitoring. The matter now lies with national regulators, including the National Pharmaceutical Pricing Authority and the Department of Pharmaceuticals.

This intervention follows an equally assertive campaign on food safety. Since taking charge of the Maharashtra FDA, Mundhe has overseen statewide drives against adulteration and unsafe food. The FDA has seized unsafe foodstuff and taken action against establishments violating food safety norms. Food and medical consumables have one thing in common: the consumer often lacks the information and power to protect himself. That is why regulation must move beyond occasional raids. Essential hospital consumables need transparent pricing, proper disclosure and, where warranted, reasonable margins. The Centre should act on Mundhe’s findings and ensure that illness does not become a licence for opaque billing.

Pilot well-being

Aviation sector must not overlook fatigue risks

IT’s a matter of concern for the entire aviation sector that six Indian airline pilots have died since November 2023. The Federation of Indian Pilots’ latest appeal to the Directorate General of Civil Aviation for an end to Flight Duty Time Limitations (FDTL) exemptions and a comprehensive fatigue risk management system deserves serious consideration. There is, importantly, no established evidence that fatigue caused any of these deaths, which involved cardiac arrest or other circumstances that remain under investigation. But the absence of a proven causal link is not a reason to dismiss the federation’s concerns.

Modern aviation safety cannot be reduced to counting hours on a roster. Consecutive duties, night operations, circadian disruption, workload and recovery periods can all influence alertness. FDTL rules are a critical safety net, but they cannot by themselves address every fatigue risk. The debate over the revised FDTL regime has acquired greater urgency in recent months. In July, IndiGo argued that tighter restrictions on night flying and longer mandatory rest periods had reduced cockpit productivity and increased costs. These concerns should be examined against evidence and international benchmarks, but not allowed to override safety considerations.

The answer lies in better regulation, not a choice between safety and efficiency. A robust national system should complement prescriptive duty limits by examining fatigue exposure across airlines. It’s also important to create a genuinely non-punitive reporting culture. Pilots must be able to report fatigue without fearing roster penalties or career consequences. India’s aviation sector is expanding rapidly. This growth makes resilient safety systems all the more significant. Fatigue rules must be applied consistently and transparently enough to protect both pilots and passengers.

Motilal Nehru's blunder

IF anything was needed to put Pandit Motilal Nehru definitely in the wrong with regard to the failure of the negotiations between him and Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya, it was the publication of the terms offered to him and rejected by him at Simla. Those terms show conclusively that Pandit Malaviya went as far towards bringing about a unity of policy and programme between his party and the Swarajists with regard to fighting the general elections as it was in his power to do. In three respects, those terms were an improvement upon the proposals embodied in the Delhi resolution itself. In the first place, they did make the decision of the majority of the elected members of the party in any Provincial Legislature with regard to confirmation by a Central Committee of the party. Secondly, they precluded the idea of the party accepting office in any province unless and until the government released or brought to trial those who were detained in prisons under the Bengal Ordinance. Thirdly, as regards the Central Legislature, they contained the important provision that until the national demand was granted, the united national party would throw out every year the item of the budget relating to the Executive Council, and might even throw out the Finance Bill “as a protest against the existing high expenditure of the government until that expenditure was brought down to what the party considered reasonable, when this could be done without injury to the country.” It is for Pandit Nehru to explain why after having accepted the Sabarmati Pact he refused to accept these terms.

Veg diplomacy offers food for thought

Dietary choice must not become an ideological weapon or a symbolic element of Indian identity

SURINDER S. JODHKA
PROFESSOR OF SOCIOLOGY,
FORMERLY WITH JNU

AMONG the highlights of the BRICS summit in New Delhi last week was the vegetarian gala dinner for visiting dignitaries. The choice was presumably aimed at showcasing India’s diverse food cultures and offering visitors a taste of what they were unlikely to be served in their own countries. Non-vegetarian dishes were conspicuous by their absence.

India does have a wide variety of vegetarian food, perhaps more than any other country in the world. From green vegetables and lentils to bread and rice preparations, each region of the country offers something unique. Indian culinary traditions also include a range of dairy and fermented foods, prepared in remarkably different ways. Indian curd is not simply a version of Western yoghurt. It has myriad avatars, from kalan and avial in South India to mishti doi in Bengal, shrikhand in Maharashtra and a wide range of raitas across the country.

Yet serving a vegetarian platter to foreign dignitaries was not merely a celebration of India’s food cultures. It also clearly carried a cultural and political message. In India, vegetarianism is associated with purity, and those committed to a vegetarian culture often see themselves as “kinder” people, and hence superior to those who eat meat, which obviously requires the killing of animals, birds or fish.

Perhaps the most commonly eaten meat worldwide is beef. For many Indians (read Hindus), the cow is holy and slaughtering it is a crime in many states of

SELECTIVE : The BRICS gala dinner featured a vegetarian menu. PTI

India. There have been several cases where even the suspicion of cow smuggling for the purpose of slaughter was provocation enough for a lynching.

Against this background, presenting an exclusively vegetarian menu as a symbol of Indian cuisine is not quite as simple or innocuous as it might appear. While this may showcase India’s cultural riches, it also carries other messages, apparently directed at the domestic audience.

Some BRICS member nations may have meat dishes integral to their cuisine. Even the oils used in cooking in many of these countries may be derived from animal fats. What if they hosted a gala dinner for a vegetarian Indian dignitary, featuring a variety of their meat delicacies, with no vegetarian options available? Would this be viewed as showcasing the cultural diversity of their countries, and appreciated in that spirit? Instead, such an arrangement would be seen as highly unusual and distasteful in any international diplomatic setting today.

More importantly, the symbol-

The association of vegetarianism with Hindu religious beliefs is misplaced. Hindu dietary practices have always been diverse.

ism of an exclusively vegetarian national cuisine also carries a cultural message. Rather than presenting India in its grand diversity, it projects a narrow and limited version that belongs to only a small minority of Indians. More than an exposition of India’s cultural specificity, it is an ideological message that stigmatises a large majority of Indians who have always been meat-eaters.

Meat-eating is popular not only among Muslims and Christians in India. According to available data, more than two-thirds of India’s Hindus eat meat. Even beef is common in some pockets of the country across religious groups. According to the National Family Health Survey (2019-21), more than 70% of Indians reported eating non-vegetarian food. This proportion was above 95% in the southern, eastern and north-eastern states. The proportion of those who reported themselves as vegetarians in West Bengal and Telangana was merely 1%. In contrast, vegetarianism was predominant in only four states of north-western and western India, with Rajasthan reporting the highest proportion of vegetarians (73%), followed by Haryana (69%), Punjab (67%) and Gujarat (60%).

The association of vegetarianism with Hindu religious beliefs is also misplaced. While this may be true for certain communities and caste groups, Hindu dietary practices have always been diverse, and vegetarianism was never a universal practice. Nearly a decade ago, while I was doing fieldwork in Himachal Pradesh, many respondents told me that slaughtering or sacrificing goats was part of local rituals in Shaivite temples. This is also true of many other Hindu communities’ rituals across the country.

Indeed, food in India has a prominent caste dimension. Privileging vegetarianism as the authentic and superior food culture of Indians stigmatises members of Dalit communities who have, across regions, been meat-eaters. The Sanskrit norm of vegetarianism invariably presents them as inferior Hindus. The same holds true for the so-called Scheduled Tribes, who are mostly meat-eaters.

Equally importantly, promoting vegetarianism has nutritional implications. Meat proteins are far more bioavailable than plant proteins. Even soybean, considered one of the best sources of plant protein, is barely 75% as bioavailable as the same quantity of chicken. Add to it the fact that animal amino acids are closely comparable to human ones, and it becomes obvious why meat diets would be better sources of protein than plant diets.

Dr Sylvia Karpagam highlights this point in her recent book, The Meat of the Matter: How the Politics of Food Shapes Our Health (HarperCollins). She states that the politicisation of food has serious implications for Indians’ nutritional health, particularly for children from poorer backgrounds. A clear example is the discontinuation of eggs from the mid-day meal programme across many states over the past decade. She argues that popular media, mostly ideologically driven, spreads prejudice against non-vegetarian food, which remains a better source of nutrition.

While vegetarians should have the freedom to eat whatever they like, their dietary preference must not become an ideological weapon. It should certainly not become a symbolic element of Indian identity.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY

Preach not to others what they should eat, but eat as becomes you and be silent. — Epictetus

The sweeper who took on dacoits

COL HP SINGH

BACK in 1982, my father was commanding a regiment in Gwalior, Madhya Pradesh. I often heard him tell my mother that his career prospects were limited because he wasn’t getting along with his Brigade Commander. During our summer holidays in Punjab, a telegram arrived from the unit Adjutant that brought an instant smile to dad’s face. The GOC (General Officer Commanding the division) had commended his regiment for an act of bravery by one of its jawans.

At the time, the area was notorious for dacoits — the Chambal ravines provided them with safe hideouts. Phoolan Devi was active in the region (she surrendered in 1983). The GOC was on a farewell visit to the station; almost the entire regiment had gone to his Durbar (now called Sainik Sammelan), leaving behind only a few personnel as a ‘rear party’. Among those in the rear was the unit sweeper, Kalicharan.

While working outside the Quarter Guard beside the main highway, he heard a gunshot. Two persons, later identified as Phoolan Devi’s gang members, inadvertently entered the unit area while fleeing. They were armed with a country-made pistol and a knife. Kalicharan challenged them. The one with the pistol tried to shoot. Reacting instantly and risking his life, Kalicharan brought him down with the long handle of his broom. Hearing the commotion, the Quarter Guard sentries rushed in. Together, they overpowered both men, who were disarmed and detained.

The Guard Commander then informed the Duty Clerk, who rang the Brigade Duty Clerk and asked him to pass the information to the Adjutant, who was attending the Durbar. Within minutes, a scribbled chit reached the Adjutant. He handed it to the Officiating CO sitting next to him. The message then reached the Station Commander, who conveyed it to the GOC, even as the latter stood on the podium addressing the troops.

The GOC paused mid-speech as he read the chit marked ‘Operational Immediate’. He smiled as the congregation wondered what the message was all about. “The entire regiment is sitting here before me, the CO is on leave and only a handful of men are in the unit. Yet, within minutes of an incident, the news reaches me. What better farewell gift could a GOC ask for?”

The audience broke into applause. “This is the kind of ‘Dastoor’ every unit must have,” the GOC concluded.

The miscreants, along with their weapons, were handed over to the police. They turned out to be wanted criminals, and the district police chief thanked my father. The Brigade Commander, however, gave my father a lukewarm Annual Confidential Report (ACR). The GOC, as Reviewing Officer, was clearly impressed by the “Dastoori Paltan” and must have improved the ACR, as dad did get his next rank. “I partly owe my promotion to Kalicharan,” he would quip. Motivated by the incident, I joined the same regiment and commanded it three decades later.

Need a long-term national plan

Refer to ‘Why it’s vital to win the tech war’; China and the US are investing heavily in minerals, chips, machines and research, while India remains far behind. Much of Indian industry is controlled by a few large business houses that prefer quick profits to long-term research. Our scientists and engineers are often poorly paid, our laboratories remain underfunded, and the links between universities and factories are weak. As a result, many skilled people leave the country. Technology cannot be developed through speeches or private profit alone. India needs a long-term national plan, with strong public investment in mines, research institutions, semiconductor production and advanced manufacturing.

MANU KANT, CHANDIGARH

Penny-wise and pound-foolish

Refer to ‘Sustaining UPI’; we must abandon the assumption that a Merchant Discount Rate of 0.4% above Rs 2,000 will be borne by the Amazons and Flipkarts of the world. In the ruthless arithmetic of commerce, every tax on the merchant becomes a surcharge on the consumer. The companies shall, with disarming ingenuity, recover this levy from us through platform fees, convenience charges, or the simple, time-honoured stratagem of refusing UPI and soliciting cash. The government first assiduously lured 140 crore Indians into the embrace of digital economy, made UPI the envy of the world, a marvel that unsettles even America. To levy even a modest MDR is to unwittingly incentivise a retreat to cash. It is a textbook case of being penny-wise and pound-foolish.

CAPT AMAR JEET (RETD), KHARAR

Digital promise, now a penalty

In 2016, PM Modi urged every Indian to reduce cash transactions and embrace UPI, calling digital payments the future of the nation. Citizens responded wholeheartedly. Today, UPI is not merely a payment option, it is a public habit built on trust. The Finance Ministry’s decision to levy a 0.4% charge on UPI merchant transactions above Rs 2,000 shatters that trust. Whether it is called MDR or by any other name, the burden will ultimately fall on the consumers’ shoulders. A surcharge by another name does not make it less painful.

GURPREET S. MALHOTRA, KANSAL

Child safety paramount

Refer to ‘Online child abuse’; a child’s innocent photograph can be manipulated into sexually explicit material and circulated without the child ever knowing how it was created. The problem extends beyond mainstream social media platforms. The Deep Web and Dark Web can provide difficult-to-trace spaces for distributing illegal material. The harm does not end when the questionable image is removed. Once such material circulates online, complete erasure is virtually impossible. Victims may therefore carry psychological and social scars for life. AI companies need robust safeguards against the generation and manipulation of child abuse material. Child safety must remain paramount as technology evolves.

HARSH PAWARIA, ROHTAK

Authority not personal privilege

Apropos of ‘Why Brown Oxfords matter in the police force’; the article makes a larger point through an apparently minor detail. Uniforms, salutes and prescribed etiquette are not empty rituals; they cultivate a sense of institutional identity and discipline. Yet the deeper question is whether discipline lies in the shoes or in the person wearing it. A perfectly polished Oxford cannot compensate for an unpolished sense of duty. Uniformity has value, but its ultimate purpose is to remind the wearer that authority is exercised on behalf of an institution, not as a personal privilege.

AFRAJ VIKASH, JIND

Respect the service

Apropos of ‘Why Brown Oxfords matter in the police force’; I remember my Commanding Officer pointing at a junior officer’s shoes (Black Oxfords) and remarking, “Put some lipstick there.” The message was unmistakable: even the smallest details of appearance speak volumes about the discipline of a uniformed service. The need of the hour is to revive regular drills and physical training, ensure appropriate turnout, reinforce discipline and periodically refresh personnel on police-public relations and professional conduct. A uniform is not merely clothing; it symbolises responsibility and public trust. Honouring the uniform is, ultimately, a way of respecting the service itself.

Collegium system plagued by nepotism

JUSTICE NIRMAL SINGH (RETD)
FORMER JUDGE

HARNIRMAL SINGH
ADVOCATE

PUNJAB AND HARYANA HIGH COURT

THE issue of appointment and removal of judges onymhas remained controversial for decades and has repeatedly generated debate among the legislature, the executive and the judiciary. Articles 124(2) and 217(1) of the Constitution originally contemplated a consultative process in judicial appointments. However, through the Second Judges Case in 1993 and the decisions that followed, the Supreme Court (SC) gave primacy to the judiciary in the appointment process and the collegium system came into existence. The word 'collegium' is not found in the Constitution. It is a judicially evolved mechanism under which judges play the dominant role in selecting judges for the high courts and the SC.

The principal criticism of the collegium system has been its lack of transparency. The criteria by which one candidate is preferred over another are not fully visible to the Bar or the public. Justice Ruma Pal, a former SC judge, famously described the process of appointment of judges as one of the best-kept secrets of the country. Concerns have repeatedly been raised about nepotism, regional preferences and the dominance of a small circle of families and well-connected members of the profession. A constitutional institution must not only be independent; its method of selecting those who exercise constitutional power must also inspire public confidence.

Judicial independence cannot mean insulation from scrutiny. Nor can it be equated with an exclusive right of judges to appoint judges. A system can protect the judiciary from political pressure while still ensuring transparency and standards of selection.

The deeper problem with the collegium system is the opportunity cost, which is rarely discussed. There are many young advocates, first-generation lawyers, academics, district judiciary officers, women lawyers and professionals from smaller towns who possess ability, integrity, constitutional understanding and the temperament for judicial office.

Yet many of them may never enter the zone of consideration because they lack access to the circles from which names traditionally emerge. When visibility, lineage or institutional connections appear to matter more than an open assessment of merit, the judiciary risks losing precisely the talent that could strengthen it for the next generation. Younger talent with substantial professional achievement should be identified early and given a genuine opportunity to serve. At the same time, experience and maturity remain essential. The answer is to create an appointment structure capable of searching across the entire legal profession and judicial service for the best candidates. There should be transparent eligibility standards, wider consideration of names, recorded reasons, meaningful scrutiny of professional competence and integrity and representation from different regions and social backgrounds.

Parliament attempted such a reform through the Constitution (Ninety-Ninth Amendment) Act, 2014 and the National Judicial Appointments Commission (NJAC) Act, 2014. The SC struck down that framework in 2015 on the ground that it damaged the independence of the judiciary.

But the constitutional conversation cannot end there. If the NJAC model contained defects, they should be cured. A revised National Judicial Appointments Commission should be considered, with adequate judicial representation to safeguard independence and meaningful participation of persons outside the judiciary to ensure accountability, diversity and public confidence.

Such a commission should not become an instrument of the government. Equally, it should not reproduce the secrecy of the collegium under a different name. Its structure must prevent domination by either the executive or the judiciary. Its procedures should be published; objective criteria should be adopted; applications and nominations should be drawn from a wider pool; conflicts of interest should be disclosed; and reasons for selection or rejection should, to the extent possible, be recorded. The purpose must be to remove patronage.

The time has therefore come for Parliament, the government, the judiciary and the Bar to reopen the debate on judicial appointments without treating reform as an attack on judicial independence. The credibility of the judiciary ultimately rests not merely on the constitutional status of judges but also on the confidence of citizens in the process by which judges reach the Bench.

A transparent, balanced and broad-based judicial appointments commission can strengthen, rather than weaken, the independence of judiciary. The higher judiciary should reflect the depth and diversity of the Indian legal profession. That goal cannot be achieved through secrecy, perceived favouritism or a narrow pipeline of familiar names. It requires institutional reform. It is high time that the idea behind the NJAC is revisited through a constitutionally sound framework so that independence, accountability, transparency and merit can stand together.

The Tribune TWO VIEWS JUDICIAL APPOINTMENTS

ANMOL JAIN
SENIOR FELLOW, MELBOURNE LAW SCHOOL

THE idea of utilising Article 124(3) to appoint distinguished jurists to the Supreme Court, which has largely turned desuetude without ever being invoked, has resurfaced with Justice Ujjal Bhuyan's recent remarks. This model has an instant intuitive appeal, particularly when one understands the SC's functions as engaging with questions of high constitutional importance and legal interpretation exercises that demand conceptual and contextual depth and foresight.

But does our SC really function as a constitutional court in the strict Kelsenian sense — a specialised, centralised constitutional court, separate from the ordinary judicial hierarchy, whose sole task is constitutional review and the harmonisation of legal interpretation? The answer is a clear no.

Numerous studies have shown with evidence that our SC is first an appellate court of last resort, and that constitutional questions are a minor segment of its docket. This reality is the outcome of both design, as the Constitution allows appeals to be made to the SC, and the courts' own doing, through its liberal use of the discretionary 'special leave' jurisdiction under Article 136, which allows virtually any litigant to knock on its door against any order of any tribunal or high court in the country. Note that this jurisdiction was intended to be exercised only in exceptional cases, and not give rise to routine appeals.

While studies need to be undertaken on the effects of such liberal use of this jurisdiction, it still points to the ineffectiveness of the courts lower in the hierarchy to successfully close litigation, the SC's lack of trust in them, and the consequent harm to both the litigant (in terms of prolonging their litigation) and the court (in terms of increased burden).

Tarunabh Khaitan's empirical study, based on a random sample of 1,100 civil special leave petitions spread across 11 years, found that the court's expansive SLP docket has "cannibalised its role as an effective constitutional court." Nick Robinson's data is starker: In 2011, 84.6% of the court's admission docket consisted of petitions invoking this residual special jurisdiction. Whatever bandwidth remains for genuine constitutional reason-

The goal cannot be achieved through secrecy, favouritism or a narrow pipeline of familiar names.

Unless the court's structure is changed, it may not be sensible to even consider the question of appointing jurists to the court.

ANITA INDER SINGH
FOUNDING PROFESSOR, CENTRE FOR PEACE AND CONFLICT RESOLUTION

THE Congress party, out of power for more than a decade, should reflect on the fact that the party which has lost elections often lacks good leadership and organisation and, thus, it does not know how to deal with the flaws of the incumbent government. The Congress, led by Sonia and Rahul Gandhi, criticised the Modi government over the grievances of farmers, unemployment and poor educational facilities. These problems were never absent, but they have increased since the Congress-led alliance was voted out of office in 2014. If the Congress wants to win elections, it must build up its grassroots organisation and inform the public about its vision.

The GenZ protests in July appear to have alerted the Congress to the extent of such challenges. For, the youth have linked political accountability with economic prospects. But even if the Congress supports the youth protests, the question arises whether its identification with youth discontentment now is a case of better late than never. Congress leaders were surely aware of such problems. So, why have they failed to craft a strategy to impress on prospective voters how the Congress would deal with these challenges?

The organisation of the Congress and its allies in the INDIA bloc will count if they are able to translate popular hopes into reality, and if the Congress is able to avoid looking like a firm dominated by the Gandhis. Sonia was elected party President in 1998; Rahul was elected party President in 2017 and served until 2019, when the BJP coalition trounced the Congress and its allies for the second time. That revealed how far the Congress had come since the mid-sixties, after the death of Jawaharlal Nehru. His strategic and organisational skills were amply demonstrated as the Congress communicated with people of all classes, living across all regions. His government was also able to present its case for transforming their hopes into policies if it was elected.

Sonia and Rahul have done little to introduce new faces to their organisation or to craft an intellectual challenge to the BJP.

The decline of the Congress started with Indira, who centralised power as PM and made partymen dependent on herself for favours. Rahul has served as its general secretary, vice-president and president. But he has started at the top of the party ladder and has yet to display the organisational skills needed if the Congress returned to power.

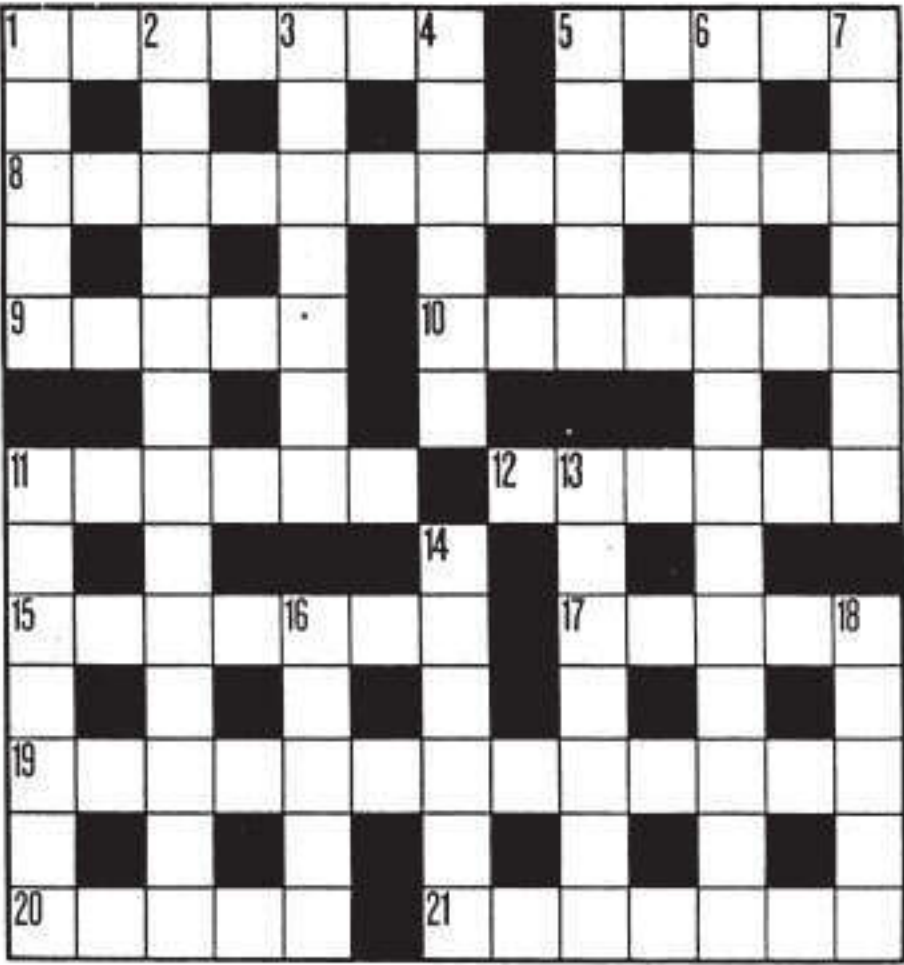

As party chiefs, Sonia and Rahul have done little to introduce new faces to their organisation or to craft an intellectual challenge to the BJP. The Congress has hardly discussed possible good policies or presented stronger Congressmen, who could contest elections on various issues. The Congress must put its own house in order if it is to convince voters that it is capable of tackling the crises of poor governance, weak rule of law and education. Voters rightly want to know more about its political, social and economic vision.

The Congress must also understand the belief of many people that the distinction between party and government was blurred by the National Advisory Council (NAC), which she headed when Manmohan Singh was PM. Eventually, the Congress lost popular support partly because it conveyed the impression that Sonia gave instructions to Singh's government.

The "dynasty" has never guaranteed electoral success for the Congress since 1977, when Indira was voted out of office because of the unpopularity of the Emergency imposed in 1975. Later, the Congress led by Rajiv, Sonia and Rahul also lost many elections. Congress leaders of all hues must come together to change the ways in which their party works so that it can be more responsive to the needs of citizens.

Will the party realise its flaws as the first step to overcoming them? Only then will it be able to deliver a credible political, ideological and administrative response to voters.

Don’t trust verbal assurances from Centre: Omar to Ladakh leadership

ADIL AKHZER

SRINAGAR, SEPTEMBER 16 Jammu and Kashmir Chief Minister Omar Abdullah on Wednesday advised the leadership in Ladakh not to rely on any verbal assurances from the Centre regarding their demands for constitutional safeguards, urging them instead to seek written commitments.

His remarks came after a recent round of sub-committee-level talks between representatives of the Ministry of Home Affairs (MHA) and leaders of the Leh Apex Body (LAB) and the Kargil Democratic Alliance (KDA) in New Delhi. Following the meeting, LAB and KDA leaders said the discussions had produced no concrete outcome. Ladakh Chief Secretary Ashish Kun-

WE HAVE BEEN VICTIMS

“I can only give advice to leaders of Ladakh as a friend and elder brother. Please do not believe any promise of the Centre unless it is given to you in writing. We have been victims of these ourselves.

Omar Abdullah, CHIEF MINISTER, J&K

dra, however, appealed to the region’s leadership to maintain optimism and reassure the public that progress was being made on key issues.

Speaking to reporters in Srinagar, Omar said Ladakh’s leaders should insist on formal assurances from the Centre.

“I can only give advice to the leaders of Ladakh as a friend and elder brother. Please do not believe any promise of the Central Government unless it is given to you in writing. We have been victims of this ourselves,” he said.

Referring to Jammu and Kashmir’s demand for restoration of statehood, Omar said a verbal assurance had earlier been given that statehood would be restored soon after the Assembly elections.

“Almost two years have passed and that promise remains unfulfilled. Therefore, I request the leaders of Ladakh and Kargil not to rely on verbal assurances. Until there is a written commitment, I do not think the people of Ladakh will achieve their objectives,” he said.

Meanwhile, ahead of the first anniversary of the September 24 protests last year, the KDA has announced a major rally on September 20 to demand justice for the four persons killed in Leh violence.

Asked about ongoing protests in the Kashmir Valley, Omar said that while democratic protest was a legitimate right, dialogue remained the most effective way of resolving issues. “To tell people in a democracy that they cannot protest would be wrong. But apart from protests, there are other ways to convey your message to the government,” he said. The Chief Minister urged agitating groups to return to the dialogue process, saying meaningful outcomes could ultimately emerge only through engagement.

“I would request these people to take the path of dialogue because solutions come through discussions. We will not be able to engage while protests are continuing. If demands are pursued solely through protests, others will also adopt the same route. As long as protests continue, meaningful talks become difficult,” he said.

Rohingya families dismantle shanties after landowners ask them to leave

OUR CORRESPONDENT

JAMMU, SEPTEMBER 16 Several Rohingya refugee families have begun dismantling their shanties in Jammu’s Burma Colony after landowners asked them to vacate the plots on which they had been living.

The development comes about a month after a high-level panel constituted by the Union Government to study demographic changes in different parts of the country visited Jammu. During its visit, the panel also toured areas inhabited by Rohingya and Bangladeshi immigrants.

Mohd Hanif, a Rohingya refugee residing in Burma Colony, said around 70 to 80 families live in the settlement and were recently directed by landowners to vacate the area within three days.

“We were told by the plot owners to leave within three days. There may be some kind of pressure on them, but we were only asked to remove our shanties. We do not know where we will go,” Hanif said.

He said Wednesday marked the final day of the notice period. “There are many elderly people suffering from ailments. We had no option but to come to Jammu after leaving our country. Everyone knows the situation in Myanmar. Many of our people were killed and we were forced to flee. We cannot leave Jammu immediately because we have nowhere else to go,” he added.

According to official estimates, around 7,000 Rohingya refugees registered with the United Nations are living in different parts of Jammu. However, authorities believe the number of undocumented Rohingyas could be significantly higher.

Another refugee, Mohamad Ilyas, said he has been living in Jammu with his family since 2010. “There was widespread violence in our country, after which we first moved to Bangladesh and later entered India. We crossed the borders into both countries and were not stopped at the time,” Ilyas said.

Meanwhile, at least 270 undocumented Rohingyas are currently lodged at a holding centre in Kathua district under the provisions of the Foreigners Act.

4 ponds filled with glacier meltwater: Ladakh L-G

OUR CORRESPONDENT

SRINAGAR, SEPTEMBER 16 All four reservoirs developed under Project Him Sarovar at Spituk Farka in Leh have been successfully filled with glacier meltwater within a record five months of construction, Ladakh Lieutenant Governor Vinai Kumar Saxena announced on Wednesday.

Sharing the achievement on X, Saxena said work on the four large ponds began on April 10, 2026, and culminated with the recharge and operationalisation of the fourth reservoir on September 9.

“With immense delight and satisfaction, I share that all four large ponds, constructed under Project Him Sarovar at Spituk Farka in Leh, have now been filled with glacier meltwater in a record time of just five months,” he posted.

According to the L-G, the first pond was inaugurated on June 21, the second was filled on July 19, the third on August 24, and the fourth on September 9.

A pond built under Project Him Sarovar at Spituk Farka in Leh.

Each pond, measuring 60 metres x 40 metres x 2 metres, has a storage capacity of nearly 60 lakh litres of glacier meltwater. Together, the four reservoirs can conserve around 24 million litres of water, creating an irrigation command area of nearly 1,000 acres.

Saxena said the reservoirs are being directly replenished by meltwater from the Stok glacier stream, with seasonal flows diverted through the Igoo-Phey Canal into the ponds.

“This ensures that huge volumes of water, which were earlier going waste, are now conserved for irrigation, ecological restoration and long-term water security,” he said.

Ramban teacher suspended for ‘harassing’ student

OUR CORRESPONDENT

JAMMU, SEPTEMBER 16 Less than a month after a government teacher came under scrutiny in connection with the rape and death of a female student in Kishtwar, another teacher has been suspended over allegations of harassing a girl student in Ramban district.

The Chief Education Officer (CEO), Ramban, in an order issued on Wednesday, placed Riaz Ahmed, a teacher posted at Government High School Haroge in Gool, under immediate suspension.

“Pursuant to the report of the inquiry committee constituted vide this office order and in terms of Rule 31 of the Jammu and Kashmir Civil Services (Classification, Control and Appeal) Rules, 1956, Riaz Ahmed, Teacher, Government High School Haroge, Zone Gool, is hereby placed under suspension with immediate effect for his involvement in the alleged incident of harassment of a girl student of the school,” the order stated.

NHM strike enters Day 8 as talks yield no breakthrough

OUR CORRESPONDENT

JAMMU, SEPTEMBER 16 With no breakthrough in negotiations between the government and National Health Mission (NHM) employees, the strike by NHM staff entered its eighth consecutive day on Wednesday.

Marking the eighth day of the agitation, NHM Employees Association Jammu president Rohit Seth led a protest at Dansal and expressed solidarity with employees participating in the movement across Jammu and Kashmir.

Wearing a black band on his forehead, Seth said the gesture symbolised the growing frustration among NHM employees, whose demands continue to remain unresolved.

He said NHM workers are an integral part of the healthcare system in J&K and have been serving patients and communities with dedication despite challenging conditions.

According to Seth, employees have repeatedly highlighted concerns related to job security, regularisation, remuneration, service conditions and social security benefits, but no concrete resolution has emerged so far.

Employee leaders have already held discussions with government representatives on issues such as salary enhancement and job security. However, the talks have remained inconclusive.

“Eight days have passed, but the determination of NHM employees has not weakened. It has become stronger,” Seth said.

He urged NHM employees across the Union Territory to remain united, disciplined and peaceful, stressing that unity was the workforce’s greatest strength. He also appealed to workers not to be divided on the basis of district, designation or workplace.

EPFO wage ceiling raised to ₹25,000

follows the same approach of periodically updating the ceiling, with the new Rs 25,000 limit intended to account for wage growth, higher incomes and the expansion of formal employment over the years.

Under the existing threshold, employees joining a job at a wage above Rs 15,000 a month are not automatically brought under the EPF framework. As a result, they can remain outside the mandatory provident fund, pension and related insurance coverage.

“The higher ceiling will widen access to provident fund savings, pension benefits under the Employees’ Pension Scheme (EPS) and insurance protection through the Employees’ Deposit Linked Insurance Scheme (EDLI), subject to the applicable provisions. It will also bring the statutory contribution and pensionable-wage framework closer to prevailing salary levels,” the ministry said.

In several states and occupations, minimum wages have moved closer to the existing threshold. The increase to Rs 25,000 is therefore intended to align the EPFO framework with prevailing wage levels and extend formal social security benefits to a wider segment of the workforce, it said.

For employers as well, experts feel wider social security coverage can support employee retention, workforce stability, morale and the development of a more secure and future-ready workforce.

Meanwhile, the proposal underwent detailed inter-ministerial consultations and was recommended by the Expenditure Finance Committee.

According to the Labour Ministry, the annual government outgo following the move is estimated at about Rs 11,339 crore, against the existing annual budgetary support of about Rs 10,250 crore. The estimated expenditure over five years is approximately Rs 56,696 crore, it said. EPFO data show around 7.98 crore contributing members across about 7.68 lakh establishments.

Five military flashpoints since 1999

Antony told the Lok Sabha, “PNS Babar closed in on INS Godavari at high speed and carried out a manoeuvre in gross violation of the relevant regulations on navigational safety and in the process came into contact with INS Godavari, marginally damaging the extended safety net on its helicopter deck.” India had lodged a protest with the Pakistan government. Tuesday’s incident in the Arabian Sea appeared broadly similar in nature, involving a collision during naval manoeuvres.

Two days later, the Ministry of Defence formally acknowledged the “technical malfunction” and expressed regret. In Pakistan, its air defence operations centre picked up a high-speed flying object inside the Indian territory. Maj Gen Babar Iftikhar, then Director General of the Inter-Services Public Relations (ISPR), then said, “The high-speed object suddenly veered towards Pakistani territory.”

Later, an IAF Court of Inquiry found the Commanding Officer, a Group Captain-level officer, and several others “blameworthy” of the incident.

Indian Army helicopter lands in PoK

In October 2011, a Cheetah helicopter of the Aviation Wing of the Army landed in Gilgit-Baltistan in Pakistan-occupied Kashmir (PoK), sparking a diplomatic row.

It was sheer luck that Pakistan’s air defence batteries did not shoot it down.

The helicopter had taken off from Leh, the headquarters of 14 Corps, to repair a Dhruv helicopter that was stranded at Drass. Running low on fuel, the pilots decided to refuel at Kargil — a few kilometres east of Drass. Spotting what appeared to be a landing ground with fuel drums, the pilots landed to refuel.

A Pakistan army jawan approached the helicopter and was asked to refuel it. It was then the crew realised they had inadvertently crossed into PoK. Later that evening, after back-channel diplomatic persuasion, the helicopter returned to India.

Shooting of Pak navy plane

Another peacetime military incident occurred in August 1999, shortly after the Kargil conflict. Pakistan navy’s surveillance plane — the French-origin, Breguet Atlantique, was shot down by an IAF MiG 21 jet some 10 km inside Indian territory in the Rann of Kutch. All 16 Pakistani military personnel on board were killed.

According to the Indian version, the MiG 21 tried to force the Atlantique to land in India, but the “intruder aircraft turned in towards the MiG 21 in an attack position”. According to Pakistan, the Atlantique was unarmed and conducting a routine training mission within its territorial limits when it was shot down without warning.

Pak ship rams Indian vessel at sea...

off-shore patrol vessel made by a Dutch-company at its shipyard in Romania — limped back to its base, while the Indian warship continued its scheduled deployment.

The sources said the Indian warship, larger than PNS Hunain, asked the Pakistani captain to alter course and maintain distance. Seeing the aggressive manoeuvre and fearing a deliberate attack, the Indian warship took evasive action, which minimised the damage. At sea, an open maritime radio channel known as “Channel 16” is used for communicating with other ships.

“It seemed the Pakistani ship was unable to steer clear of the Indian vessel in time and showed a lack of control,” the sources said. The Navy’s Rules of Engagement emphasise avoiding accidents. Therefore, any on-the-spot retaliatory action against PNS Hunain would have been escalatory, the sources said.

The MEA termed the incident an “unacceptable and unprofessional conduct of Pakistani naval units at sea, which led to a collision with an Indian Navy vessel”.

Although the incident took place in international waters and did not cause any major damage, the conduct of the Pakistani naval ship was in direct contravention of Article 10 of the April 1991 Agreement between India and Pakistan on Advance Notice on Military Exercises, Manoeuvres and Troops Movements.

Article 10 lays down how the two navies will operate. It says the naval ships and submarines belonging to either country shall not approach within three nautical miles (approximately 5.5 km) of each other to avoid any accident while operating in international waters. The agreement was designed to prevent accidents that could trigger a larger military response. For instance, in the late 1980s, Indian military exercise, “Brasstacks”, along the western front had raised eyebrows.

The MEA stated that Pakistan’s Charge d’Affaires was asked to urge the authorities in his country to ensure that all military units “exercise proper caution and respect bilateral agreements to avoid similar incidents”. The MEA said it had also instructed the Charge d’Affaires of India in Islamabad to lodge a similar protest with Pakistan’s Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

He pointed to previous Supreme Court and Delhi High Court orders declining to entertain similar matters and argued that the relief sought essentially entered the government’s policy domain. Sharma suggested that Kathuria’s petition could instead be treated as a representation and considered by the government within a stipulated period.

That suggestion prompted another question from the Bench. The court wondered how it could direct the government to frame a policy within a fixed timeframe when policy formulation itself fell within the executive’s domain. It instead asked the ASG to ascertain whether the Centre was contemplating any policy or Kathuria’s case makes a distinction between harmful content and allegedly harmful design. His grievance, according to the petition, is not directed at individual posts, videos or other material on social media. Instead, he argues that the underlying architecture is built to “capture, retain and repeatedly re-stimulate” users’ attention.

GST. Now if the government charges us on UPI MDR, then we will promote cash. Why should we pay transaction charges?” he asked.

New Delhi Traders Association general secretary Amit Gupta said the additional charge would make UPI payments a costly option for traders who were already operating on tight margins.

Leader of Opposition in the Lok Sabha Rahul Gandhi accused Prime Minister Narendra Modi of trying to please US President Donald Trump by imposing the charge. The Congress alleged that the PM “redefined NOTA — Narendra’s Ongoing Trump Appeasement”. Rahul urged the PM to “stop lying down in front of the US, have a spine, stand up” and roll back the “UPI tax”. CPI general secretary D Raja demanded that the government withdraw the “anti-people decision”.

The Finance Ministry clarified that there was no foreign influence behind the decision. “Some claims suggest the change is due to foreign influence. This is false. India’s UPI policy decisions are made independently,” the ministry said. — TNS/PTI

Sources said the complainant had also recorded her statement before a judicial magistrate. Chawla, in a video message released on Wednesday evening, denied the allegations, terming these false and fabricated. He alleged that a conspiracy had been hatched against him. He said he would establish his innocence in a court of law.

In the video, Chawla also announced his resignation from both the SGPC membership and the post of senior vice-president of the SAD, saying he did not want the case to create difficulties for the party. “I have sent my resignation to SAD president Sukhbir Singh Badal and SGPC president Harjinder Singh Dhani,” Chawla said. The handling of the case by the Ropar police has raised questions, with senior officers maintaining silence despite the FIR having been filed four weeks ago.

Populationfalling, PM advisorybody suggests ending sterilisationgrant

NEW DELHI, SEPTEMBER 16 The Economic Advisory Council to the Prime Minister has recommended ending sterilisation-linked incentive payments in states as the national total fertility rate is now at 1.9, well below the replacement fertility rate. The Economic Advisory Council to the Prime Minister (EAC-PM), in a working paper titled 'The Ghost of Population Past: How Population Control Persists in India', also called for eliminating all motivational incentive payments tied to terminal methods and the ASHA incentive related to limiting couples to two children. "Roll back all benefit transfer payments, including acceptor payments, wage-loss compensations, and enhanced incentives to acceptors and service providers, related to sterilisations. There is no rationale for why these need to continue in the states that are now below replacement fertility" it said. — PTI

Pak’s Shahzad Bhatti Network gets terror outfit tag under UAPA

Group involved in killing of Sidhu Moosewala; smuggled arms, narcotics

ANIMESH SINGH TRIBUNE NEWS SERVICE

NEW DELHI, SEPTEMBER 16 The Centre on Wednesday declared the Pakistan-based Shahzad Bhatti Network (SBN) a "terrorist organisation" under the UAPA. The group was involved in the killing of Punjabi singer Sidhu Moosewala in 2022.

The group is involved in smuggling of arms, explosives and narcotics from across the border; apart from roping in youths and petty criminals into terrorism, targeting India's democratic structure and publication of hateful digital content, a notification issued by the Ministry of Home Affairs (MHA) said.

The notification, issued under Section 35 of the UAPA, empowers agencies to treat the SBN and its cadre as a designated terror entity and pursue enhanced charges, including terror financing, membership and conspiracy. Days before Independence Day, security agencies had launched a nationwide crackdown on an alleged Bhatti-linked network, detaining 253 people across 14 states and recovering explosives, firearms, and surveillance equipment. The recoveries, allegedly including IEDs, grenades bearing Pakistan Ordnance Factory markings, pistols, live cartridges and CCTV cameras said to have been used for espionage, point to direct cross-border links.

"The SBN is promoting terrorism through violent activities that disrupt public order by using digital communication platforms to disseminate provocative messages, posing a serious challenge to the integrity of the nation," it said. Several criminal cases were registered against the cadre of the SBN across multiple jurisdictions for their involvement in unlawful and terrorist activities, the notification added.

The SBN is allegedly a Pakistan-based, ISI-backed terror syndicate linked to grenade, IED and petrol bomb attacks, targeted killings and surveillance of police, defence and religious sites.

"The MHA declares the Shahzad Bhatti Network a terrorist organisation under the UAPA. The group is involved in the smuggling of arms, explosives and narcotics across borders, apart from inciting youths and petty criminals into terrorism. Targeting India's democratic structure and communal harmony, the syndicate also published hateful content online," Union Home Minister Amit Shah posted on X.

In July, the NIA had filed a chargesheet against eight accused, including Bhatti, in connection with the IED car bomb blast in the parking area of Ambala's Baldev Nagar police station in January. Bhatti and seven arrested Indian nationals were chargesheeted under relevant sections of the UA (P) Act 1967, BNS 2023, the Explosive Substances Act 1908 and the Telecommunication Act 2023 in the case.

Hospitals charging excessive rates, says Tukaram Mundhe

MANIKANT MISHRA TRIBUNE NEWS SERVICE

NEW DELHI, SEPTEMBER 16 Maharashtra Food and Drug Administration (FDA) Commissioner Tukaram Mundhe has flagged steep mark-ups on basic medical supplies, including an IV infusion set purchased for Rs 11 but billed to an inpatient at Rs 325, and a nebuliser mask costing Rs 40 that was charged at Rs 715.

The Maharashtra FDA has urged the Centre to bring surgical and other medical supplies used by hospitalised patients under a stricter price-control framework, arguing that unchecked trade margins are enabling companies and suppliers to levy disproportionately high charges.

Mundhe shared details of the findings in a post on X, highlighting the wide gap between procurement costs and the prices ultimately paid by patients. According to figures cited by the FDA chief, an infusion set bought for Rs 11 was sold to a hospitalised patient for Rs 325. A nebuliser mask costing Rs 40 was billed at Rs 715, while an IV cannula purchased for Rs 22.50 was priced as high as Rs 424.

The FDA chief compared procurement costs and patient charges for several commonly used medical supplies, including IV sets, syringes, nebuliser masks and oxygen masks.

The findings have been forwarded to the Union Department of Pharmaceuticals. Mundhe has sought limits on trade margins and called for surgical supplies to be brought under the regulatory framework of the Drugs (Prices Control) Order (DPCO), 2013.

The move follows the state FDA's recent action against substandard food products in hotels and restaurants. The latest intervention shifts the focus to the prices charged to patients for essential medical supplies during hospital treatment. Mundhe described the price differences identified during the survey as excessive and called for measures to curb the practice of charging exorbitant rates for basic medical equipment.

FSSAI considers pan-India ban on analogue paneer

MANIKANT MISHRA TRIBUNE NEWS SERVICE

The Food Safety and Standards Authority of India (FSSAI) is working towards framing a central-level mechanism to deal with the issue. FSSAI Chief Executive Officer Rajit Punhani will hold a major meeting of representatives from all states will be held in Delhi on September 24. The meeting is expected to discuss a nationwide ban on analogue paneer and measures to effectively curb its manufacture, supply and sale.

6 pilot deaths in 3 yrs; Federation demands fatigue-risk overhaul

SHEKHAR SINGH TRIBUNE NEWS SERVICE

NEW DELHI, SEPTEMBER 16 Six Indian airline pilots have died on duty or during duty-related activities in the past three years, triggering fresh concerns over pilots' health and fatigue. The Federation of Indian Pilots (FIP) has asked aviation regulator DGCA to withdraw all dispensations from Flight Duty Time Limitation (FDTL) rules and bring airlines under a mandatory fatigue risk management regime.

In a letter to the DGCA, FIP chief Capt CS Randhawa sought an independent scientific examination of the fatalities and pilot health trends, besides scrutiny of airline rostering, recovery periods, circadian disruption and fatigue exposure. Randhawa, however, made it clear that the FIP was not establishing a direct link between fatigue and the deaths, as no such causal relationship had been established through any official investigation.

"These events warrant an urgent and comprehensive review of fatigue exposure, rostering practices, recovery opportunities, medical surveillance and FRMS effectiveness across Indian aviation operations," he said.

The FIP has listed six fatalities between November 2023 and September 2026.

CBI books US missionary group for FCRA violations

ANIMESH SINGH TRIBUNE NEWS SERVICE

NEW DELHI, SEPTEMBER 16 The Central Bureau of Investigation (CBI) has registered an FIR against US-based Christian missionary organisation The Timothy Initiative (TTI) and six of its functionaries for allegedly conspiring to withdraw foreign funds worth Rs 92.5 crore through ATMs across India using overseas debit cards, in violation of provisions of the Foreign Contribution (Regulation) Act (FCRA).

According to the FIR, the alleged transactions took place between November 2025 and April 2026. The agency further alleged that, in addition to these withdrawals, the accused, in collusion with the organisation, withdrew another Rs 44 crore using the same modus operandi between January and March 2026 in states including Karnataka, Chhattisgarh and Assam.

The Ministry of Home Affairs had directed the CBI to investigate the matter on July 1 this year after the Enforcement Directorate (ED) flagged the issue on June 4. The ED had requested the ministry's FCRA wing to take appropriate action, including the registration of an FIR against TTI and the six individuals.

Those named in the FIR are Jonathan Rajan, Micah Mark, Ajit Verghese Mathai, Varghese Chacko, Bablu Kurmi and Supreme Joy, along with the organisation itself.

The FIR, filed on August 27 and accessed by The Tribune, identifies several TTI functionaries, including Jonathan S Rajan, described as the overall operations head; Micah Mark, identified as a key financial operative who was caught at Bengaluru's Kempegowda airport on April 24 carrying 24 debit cards; Ajit Verghese Mathai, the finance head; and field functionaries Bablu Kurmi, Supreme Joy and Varghese Chacko.

The accused have been charged under provisions relating to the receipt and utilisation of foreign funds under the FCRA, criminal conspiracy under the Bharatiya Nyaya Sanhita (BNS), and the IT Act.

SC no to recast panel probing ‘police excesses’ during CJP stir

NEW DELHI, SEPTEMBER 16

Terming the allegations against a five-member High-Powered Enquiry Committee (HPEC) set up to examine alleged police excesses against students during the protests led by Cockroach Janta Party (CJP) here in July as “conjectures and preconceived notions”, the Supreme Court has refused to reconstitute the panel headed by former SC Judge Subhash Reddy. In the September 10 order uploaded on the SC website on Tuesday, a Bench led by Chief Justice Surya Kant noted that the HPEC was not created to espouse the causes of one or the other party before the court but to assist it with the highest standards of fairness and transparency and with a dispassionate approach. “In the circumstances, we are not inclined to effect any alteration in the constitution of the panel, particularly where the prayer for such reconstitution proceeds on nothing more than conjecture and preconceived notions, articulated even before the HPEC has embarked upon its enquiry,” said the Bench, which also included Justice Joymalya Bagchi and Justice V Mohana.

Besides Justice Reddy, other members of the panel are former Punjab and Haryana High Court Chief Justice Ravi Shankar Jha, former Delhi HC Judge Shalinder Kaur, former CBI Director Rishi Kumar Shukla and former Meghalaya DGP LR Bishnoi.

Some of the petitioners had last month sought reconstitution of the panel even as Solicitor General Tushar Mehta vehemently opposed the plea, terming it politically motivated.

However, the SC turned it down. “Having perused the contents of the application, we are constrained to observe that aspersions have been cast upon the HPEC in a manner that is both premature and precipitate,” it said.

Reiterating directions issued on August 18, the SC requested the HPEC to submit its first report to it “at the earliest”. It also requested the HPEC to appoint a member secretary to facilitate logistical and secretarial assistance.

The Bench directed the Delhi Police to assess the threat perception and provide protection to a 14-year-old protester and her family. It also directed them to expeditiously conduct probe against anti-social elements allegedly threatening the minor and her family.

HC rejects plea for probing conflicting accounts of protest

NEW DELHI, SEPTEMBER 16

The Delhi High Court on Wednesday dismissed a plea seeking clarity on whether the police resorted to a lathi-charge during a Cockroach Janta Party (CJP) protest in the Capital.

The High Court stated that “accountability” and “transparency” may be powerful words, but they could not be invoked “in a vacuum” to turn every contradiction between media reports and an official police statement into a PIL.

A Division Bench said conflicting versions in news and a statement by the Delhi Police did not, by themselves, create a dispute warranting the court’s intervention.

‘Have a spine’: Rahul cites US pressure, asks PM to roll back UPI fee

SHEKHAR SINGH
TRIBUNE NEWS SERVICE

NEW DELHI, SEPTEMBER 16

Congress leader Rahul Gandhi on Wednesday asked PM Narendra Modi to “have a spine” and withdraw the new fee on UPI merchant payments. He also accused the PM of “prostrating” before US President Donald Trump as the Congress linked the digital payment decision to mounting American pressure on India over tariffs, trade and visas.

“Stop lying down in front of the US, have a spine, stand up,” Rahul said in a video message, demanding an immediate rollback of what he described as a “UPI tax”. Invoking his grandmother and former PM Indira Gandhi,

Comparing Modi with Indira, he said the PM had chosen neither Left nor Right, but to “lie down straight and prostrate himself in front of Trump”.

Party chief Mallikarjun Kharge alleged that the Modi government was repeatedly giving ground to Washington while Indians bore the consequences.

Congress MP Jairam Ramesh coined a new expansion for NOTA to make his political point -- “Narendra’s Ongoing Trump Appeasement”.

Meta admits to mistake, agrees to report child abuse content to Indian agencies

NEW DELHI, SEPTEMBER 16

Meta officials admitted to a mistake before the National Commission for Protection of Child Rights (NCPCR) on Wednesday and agreed to directly report child abuse-related content to Indian law enforcement agencies, government sources said.

The firm indicated that it would itself vet such content in future, a move that assumes significance amid growing scrutiny of the role played by Meta’s algorithms in determining what users see on Instagram and Facebook.

Meta India chief Arun Srinivas and other senior executives appeared before the child rights panel for the second time in a week as the Social media platform not just an intermediary, algorithms determine visibility: Govt sources

NCPCR stepped up its inquiry into alleged advertisements linked to Child Sexual Exploitative and Abuse Material (CSEAM) on Instagram.

Meta officials acknowledged the mistake and agreed to strengthen the company’s mechanism for reporting child safety-related cases in India, the government sources said.

Under the new arrangement, Meta will directly report child abuse content to the Indian agencies through the cybercrime portal managed by the Indian Cyber Crime Coordination Centre (I4C), the sources said. The officials also indicated that Meta would vet such content itself going forward. According to the sources, “This is a big thing that they themselves have shared responsibility for reporting such content.”

The development comes amid questions over whether social media platforms can be treated simply as passive intermediaries when their algorithms and automated systems play a role in recommending, amplifying and determining the visibility of content.

The government sources said Meta could no longer be viewed merely as a “simple intermediary” and should instead be regarded as a “service provider” with greater responsibility for the content appearing on its platforms.

They said Meta’s use of algorithms to amplify content and determine its visibility means the company plays a more active role in deciding what users see. This places greater responsibility on the platform than what is traditionally associated with a passive intermediary.

“Every service provider has responsibilities. Once Meta has agreed to be responsible for what they have on the platform, as the next steps, they have to start taking many more responsibilities,” they added.

Srinivas did not respond to repeated media queries about the proceedings as he left the NCPCR office after Wednesday’s hearing.

Top court dismisses 271 appeals filed by Centre against disability pension

SATYA PRAKASH
TRIBUNE NEWS SERVICE

NEW DELHI, SEPTEMBER 16

The Supreme Court has dismissed 271 appeals filed by the Centre challenging orders passed by the Armed Forces Tribunal (AFT) and various high courts for the grant of disability pension to ex-servicemen within 15 years of retirement.

Holding that the disability was “neither attributable nor aggravated” by military service, the Release Medical Board had dismissed the ex-servicemen’s disability claims. On appeal, the AFT/high courts, however, granted them disability pension, forcing the Centre to move the Supreme Court.

The dispute centred around the interpretation of Entitlement Rules, 2008, which made a significant departure from the Entitlement Rules, 1982.

On behalf of the Centre, Attorney General R Venkataramani argued under the 2008 Rules, a serviceman can’t claim disability without showing causal connection with the service as the presumption of fitness available under the 1982 Rules were gone.

The ex-servicemen contended though the 2008 Entitlement Rules did away with the presumption of fitness, the core scheme and beneficial provisions broadly remain untouched. A Bench of Justices PS Narasimha and Alok Aradhe said the Army must still prove that the disability was neither attributable nor aggravated by military service.

Saudi calls Houthi attack on Mecca 'red line' as Gulf tensions flare up

Riyadh pounds Yemen | Crown Prince seeks Egypt's backing

CAIRO/NEW DELHI, SEPTEMBER 16 Saudi Arabia accused Yemen's Iran-backed Houthi rebels of trying to attack Islam's holiest city Mecca, as the region responded with condemnation on Wednesday but no sign of military support. The kingdom, a key US ally, declared Mecca a "red line" as it slid deeper into the new front of the Iran war. A crucial Saudi pipeline has been shut down. The Houthis denied firing drones towards Mecca. The Saudis said they intercepted and destroyed the drone before it entered the airspace over the birthplace of the Prophet Muhammad. Saudi's Crown Prince on Tuesday sought backing from the President of Egypt, his ally across the Red Sea.

and nuclear power Pakistan. But officials from Türkiye and Pakistan said they had not received a Saudi request for support in response to the Houthis' escalation. The Turkish official said efforts to "institutionalise" the alliance needed to be completed before the pact became operational.

India voices concern over drone attack
India on Wednesday condemned the drone attack near Mecca in Saudi, expressing concern over the threat to civilian lives and stressing the special significance of the holy city to Muslims across the world. "We are deeply concerned at the drone attack near Mecca," MEA spokesperson Randhir Jaiswal said. — TNS/Agencies

India faces 100% tariff risk as US House set to vote on Russia curbs Bill

UJWAL JALALI
TRIBUNE NEWS SERVICE

NEW DELHI, SEPTEMBER 16 The US House of Representatives is set to vote on late Wednesday on a sweeping Russia sanctions Bill that could give President Donald Trump powers to impose tariffs of up to 100 per cent on countries that continue to buy Russian oil and gas, potentially exposing India to higher duties on its exports to the US. The legislation, named the 'Lindsey O Graham Sanctioning Russia and Iran Act of 2026', cleared a key procedural hurdle in the House on Tuesday night, with lawmakers voting 214-211 to advance it towards a final vote.

The Senate passed the measure last month by an 86-11 vote. If the House approves the Senate-passed version without changes, the legislation would move to the White House for President Trump's consideration. Trump has indicated that he supports the measure. The proposed legislation seeks to intensify economic pressure on Moscow over its war in Ukraine by targeting Russia's energy and defence sectors, officials and its so-called shadow fleet of tankers. It would also provide the US President with authority to impose steep tariffs on countries that purchase significant quantities of Russian energy. India and China are among the countries that could face the tariff provision because of their purchases of Russian oil.

EU chief wants Canada as bloc's 'associate member'

BRUSSELS, SEPTEMBER 16 European Commission President Ursula von der Leyen on Wednesday said she wanted to open the door to Canada becoming the EU's first "associate member" in a push to forge new links among allies in "an openly hostile world". EU lawmakers gave a standing ovation after she made the proposal and then walked over to embrace Canada's PM Mark Carney, who was in the European Parliament to hear her annual State of the Union address. UK fractures deepen as Scotland, Wales, N Ireland seek EU future

SHYAM BHATIA
LONDON CORRESPONDENT

SIX years after Britain formally left the European Union, the argument over Brexit is acquiring a new and rather unexpected dimension. It is no longer confined to the familiar question of whether Britain itself should seek a closer relationship with Europe. The constitutional future of the United Kingdom is now becoming entangled with the question of Europe — and Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland are increasingly making the connection explicit. This week, the leaders of the Scottish National Party, Plaid

Irish President Catherine Connolly (right) with Scottish First Minister John Swinney in Edinburgh. REUTERS

Cymru and Sinn Féin met in Cardiff and signed an agreement asserting the right of their nations to determine their own constitutional futures. The memorandum declared that "each of our nations has the right to determine its own future, through democratic means and in accordance with the wishes of its people". It called on the British government to "prepare for, plan and facilitate constitutional change" in Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland. It also declared: "We believe the future of our nations belongs in the European Union." It was an extraordinary piece of political theatre. For the first time, the governments in Edinburgh, Cardiff and Belfast are led by parties committed to leaving the UK, although the leaders met in Cardiff as party leaders rather than formally representing their governments. John Swinney, Scotland's First Minister and SNP leader, is pressing for another independence referendum. Sinn Féin's Michelle O'Neill is campaigning for the possibility of a referendum on Irish reunification. Plaid Cymru's Rhun Iwan Iwan has been more cautious about timing, ruling out a Welsh independence referendum for the time being while seeking greater powers for Wales. The EU sits at the heart of an argument that was once largely about Westminster and the nations of Britain. That is where the wider British debate becomes interesting. The UK government is not proposing to reverse Brexit. Indeed, the language from London remains that Britain is outside the EU and will remain so. But the practical relationship is changing.

Tata Sons board should commit to long-delayed IPO, says proxy adviser

MUMBAI, SEPTEMBER 16 Corporate governance advisory firm InGovern Research Services urged Tata Sons Ltd's board to commit to a stock market listing without further delay, arguing the Reserve Bank of India's rejection of the holding company's bid to exit tighter regulatory oversight has left India's largest conglomerate with no credible path to remain private. In a report titled 'Tata Sons: Bell the Cat', InGovern said the board should stop pursuing "prolonged litigation or alternative structures aimed at remaining unlisted" and instead prepare for an initial public offering, which would benefit the roughly 1.77 crore (non-unique) shareholders across Tata group companies that hold indirect exposure to Tata Sons through their stakes in the holding firm. The RBI informed Tata Sons, in a letter dated September 11, that it was rejecting the company's March 2024 application to surrender its registration as a systemically important core investment company (CIC-ND-SI). — PTI

RBI backs 0.4% levy for large-value UPI payments, says move to boost ecosystem

NEW DELHI, SEPTEMBER 16 The Reserve Bank of India (RBI) announced that implementing Merchant Discount Rate (MDR) on high-value UPI transactions was a significant move to enhance the long-term viability of India's digital payments framework. In a post on X, the central bank mentioned that the action would allow UPI to keep growing and innovating while catering to consumers and businesses nationwide. The RBI stated that an equitable and suitable allocation of MDR among ecosystem participants would foster ongoing investment in technology, infrastructure and acceptance networks. This may lead to broader UPI adoption, expand the customer base and facilitate ongoing growth in transaction volumes.

■ Merchants would have to pay 18% GST on the Merchant Discount Rate (MDR) charges for UPI payments above ₹2,000, but could claim input tax credit (ITC), thereby easing the overall tax burden, tax experts said on Wednesday.

In addition, the RBI announced that all UPI transactions, including person-to-person (P2P) and person-to-merchant (P2M), would stay free for users. P2M UPI trans-

Gold hallmarking charges soar 67% to ₹75

TRIBUNE NEWS SERVICE
NEW DELHI, SEPTEMBER 16 The hallmarking charge for gold items has risen by 67 per cent, from Rs 45 to Rs 75 per item, with the new rates starting on September 14, and a minimum fee of Rs 200 will be charged for gold items submitted for hallmarking. The rise of Rs 30 per article is said to be due to enhanced infrastructure and cost recovery measures. Reports indicate that the enhanced HUID (Hallmark Unique Identification) features, such as vendor information and photographs on the BIS Care app, elevate the verification workload; therefore, escalating labor costs, upkeep of testing laboratories, and rigorous internal market monitoring prompted the revision. Nonetheless, customers sending smaller shipments will face a bigger effective fee due to the Rs 200 minimum.

India's bench strength in focus

Iyer-led team likely to change combination for final T20I

NEW DELHI, SEPTEMBER 16 With the series already in the bag, India might be tempted to move away from the established combination and give some game time to Vaibhav Sooryavanshi among others when they take on Afghanistan in the inconsequential third T20 International here on Thursday. Playing in familiar conditions, India have played like an unstoppable force, making the dangerous Afghanistan outfit look ordinary.

Having sealed the series on Tuesday night, India captain Shreyas Iyer said there could be a change in the combination for the final game to give players on the bench much-needed time before they fly to Japan for the Asian Games beginning September 19. The selections so far have made it clear that India are not willing to go out of the way to make room for Sooryavanshi, who made his debut on the tour of England in July when Sanju Samson was not in the best of form.

Now both Samson and Abhishek Sharma are in good touch and considering they both are one-format regulars, they would not want to be rested, leaving the management to make that call. "We want all of them to get used to the wicket and the conditions and also get some practice. So, it would be a nice game to give opportunities to the players, especially who have been sitting out, and also change a little bit in the combination as well," said Iyer after another dominating win. Another option to fit Sooryavanshi in the playing eleven would be to give Ishan Kishan a rest. Kishan captained East Zone to the Duleep Trophy title before linking up with the national squad. duties in the ongoing series. Also the management would want Iyer and Tilak Varma to get some time in the centre with the destructive top-three leaving little to do for the rest of the batters in the first two games. The likes of Nitish Reddy and Shivam Dube are yet to bat in the series.

On the bowling front, from the team's point of view, it was heartening to see a fit again Reddy among the wickets on Tuesday.

He is seen as a backup for the injury-prone Hardik Pandya, making him an important figure in the team's plans going forward.

Playing in place of an injured Varun Chakravarthy, Ravi Bishnoi had a decent run in the second T20 and is likely to be given another opportunity. The new-ball combination of Jasprit Bumrah and Arshdeep Singh has been impressive as ever too.

Afghanistan will have to find a way to deal with the seasoned pacers in the power-play and then build their innings from there. They have been underwhelming with the bat, not giving themselves enough chance to compete against their mighty opponents.

If they are batting first again, Afghanistan must post at least 200 to push India. "We thought about how to improve that 150-160 to 200-plus. So we need to bring that intent to the team. I'm pretty sure we will improve that area," said Afghanistan skipper Ibrahim Zadran. — PTI

Pak requests AHF to shift its matches from India to neutral venue

LAHORE, SEPTEMBER 16 Refusing to travel to India citing "sensitive bilateral situation", Pakistan on Wednesday asked the Asian Hockey Federation (AHF) to shift its Asian Champions Trophy matches to a neutral venue to ensure the team's "uninterrupted" participation in the tournament.

Hockey India secretary general Bhola Nath Singh, who is also an AHF vice-president, though rejected the request, saying there won't be any change in venue. "No such request would be entertained. There will be no change in venue. In the past also Pakistan did this. If they want to play in the Asian Champions Trophy, they will have to come to India," Bhola Nath said.

The Pakistan Hockey Federation (PHF) said it wanted a neutral venue to ensure the country's uninterrupted and full participation in the men's continental tournament, to be held in Punjab's Mohali and Jalandhar from October 27 to November 5.

Interim PHF president Mohyuddin Ahmed Wani said in a statement that he requested the AHF to entirely shift the tournament or Pakistan's matches to a neutral venue. "The decision has been taken in view of the current sensitive bilateral situation between Pakistan and India and the prevailing security conditions, with the aim of ensuring a safe, dignified and conducive environment for the national players and officials," Wani said.

He further said Pakistan remains fully committed to the Asian Champions Trophy and the promotion of hockey globally. "We are ready to take on India as well as all FIH member nations on the field and remain committed to the principle of keeping sport free from politics," Wani said. "We strongly hope that the Asian Hockey Federation will positively consider our dignified proposal for a neutral venue to ensure Pakistan's uninterrupted and full participation in the tournament."

Asked about Pakistan's possible replacement if they stick to their stand, Bhola Nath said: "We have two teams in Bangladesh and Oman who can take Pakistan's place."

The development comes just a few hours after a senior PHF official said that the government has not given clearance for the national team to travel to India as claimed earlier by Punjab Chief Minister Bhagwant Mann.

Mann had earlier confirmed Pakistan's participation in the Asian Champions Trophy along with Bhola Nath, insisting that India's sports policy allowed Pakistan to take part in multinational sporting events in the country.

Pakistan also withdrew from the FIH Junior World Cup in Tamil Nadu last year and the Asia Cup expressing concerns over the security situation. India, Pakistan, Malaysia, China, Japan and Korea are the participating nations in the premier regional event. — PTI

Chess Olympiad: Indian men beat Thailand 3-1

SAMARKAND (UZBEKISTAN), SEP 16 World champion D Gukesh, Nihal Sarin and Vidit Gujrathi registered convincing victories but Arjun Erigaisi's late collapse cost India a sweep as the men's team began its campaign at the 46th World Chess Olympiad with a 3-1 win over Thailand here on Wednesday.

Nihal was the first Indian to win, defeating Thanadon Kulpruethanon, before Gukesh produced a brilliant attacking display to beat Faris Rashid Alriyami. Vidit then completed a comfortable victory over Tupfah Khumnorkaew.

Arjun, however, went down to Prin Laohawirapap after being in a position of strength for much of the game.

The Indian women's team, meanwhile, began its campaign with a commanding 4-0 victory over the Dominican Republic. Top-ranked Indian Koneru Humpy made a winning start with a victory over Franchesca Ramirez Luzon with the white pieces, while R Vaishali had a smooth outing against Miguelina De La Rosa Martinez. Hardik, Pant ignored as Dhir, Nabi get maiden call-ups

NEW DELHI, SEPTEMBER 16 Rookie Punjab all-rounder Naman Dhir and Jammu and Kashmir seamer Auqib Nabi earned their maiden call-ups to India's ODI squad for the upcoming series against the West Indies, while veterans Hardik Pandya and Rishabh Pant were ignored for separate reasons.

KL Rahul will be the vice-captain in absence of Shreyas Iyer. India will play three ODIs and five T20Is against the West Indies starting September 27 in Thiruvananthapuram.

The T20I side will comprise mostly the Asian Games squad with Mayank Yadav and Prince Yadav coming in place of Yash Thakur and Vipraj Nigam.

Meanwhile, after the Asian Games, Jasprit Bumrah will directly play ODIs in New Zealand.

While Pandya is supposed to be declared fit on September 20, the national selection panel won't pick him if he doesn't prove that he is fit to bowl 10 overs for India A.

While a section in the BCCI wanted Pandya to play against the West Indies directly since he could be cleared by the BCCI Centre of Excellence for his 'Return To Play' by September 20, the selection panel is clear that "not six overs but Pandya will only be included when he starts bowling a full quota of 10 overs."

Also in a significant move, the selectors pulled Nitish Kumar Reddy out of the Asian Games squad to include him in the ODI side for the West Indies series.

The reason being the absence of Pandya and the lack of seam bowling all-round options. Since Pandya's fitness has been dodgy, Reddy is being seen as his heir apparent.

It is understood that his services are of more importance in the ODI set-up rather than the T20I competition at the Asian Games where most teams are of no match to India's quality and might.

In the case of Pant, it is understood that the selectors went by the feedback from the important members of the team management who feel that the maverick keeper-batter hasn't done justice to his phenomenal talent when it comes to white ball cricket.

Pant has been named captain of the Rest of India team for the Irani Cup with Mumbai batter Sarfaraz Khan as the vice-captain.

While Ravindra Jadeja's

white ball stocks are on the wane, Axar Patel's presence in the Asian Games squad and Harsh Dubey's untimely hamstring injury provided the 37-year-old all-rounder with another ODI lifeline.

Jadeja will get to play all three games and can once again put Axar under pressure as the selectors zero in on core 20 members.

Strangely, Dhir's best performances have come in the T20s for Mumbai Indians while Nabi has done wonders with the red ball in the Ranji Trophy. But there weren't too many options available as far as a reserve middle-order batting all-rounder and an extra pacer are concerned.

Dhir has played only 14 List A Games for Punjab in the Vijay Hazare Trophy scoring 357 runs at an average of 39, a strike-rate of 106 and four half-centuries to go with a top score of 97. He has also taken seven wickets with his part-time off-breaks.

Nabi, on his part, has 56 wickets from 36 List A games for Jammu and Kashmir and also bowls at a decent economy rate of 5.20. But it is highly unlikely that either Dhir or Nabi will get a look-in in the first XI. — PTI

Brook's 114 leads England to dominant win over Sri Lanka

SOUTHAMPTON, SEPTEMBER 16 England captain Harry Brook smashed 10 fours and six sixes in an unbeaten 114 off just 49 balls to set up a dominant 119-run win over Sri Lanka in the first of their three T20 internationals. England piled up 254-4 after being put into bat in Southampton and that was mainly down to Brook, who has now scored 288 runs without getting out in the T20 format after unbeaten innings of 79 and 95 against India in July. Opener Jos Buttler also weighed in with 80 off 44 balls for England.

The Sri Lankans attempted the second-highest chase in the history of T20 internationals and didn't get close. They were dismissed for 135, with Dunith Wellalage top-scoring with 33 and Sonny Baker having figures of 3-12 off his four overs. There will be three ODIs

Smriti's evolving power game offers blueprint for youngsters

NEW DELHI, SEPTEMBER 16 India batting stalwart Smriti Mandhana's evolved power game and her dominance against spinners offer a blueprint for younger players as women's T20 cricket continues to change rapidly, feels former captain Anjum Chopra. The left-handed batter topped the all-time run charts across formats in the recently concluded Asia Cup, reaching the milestone during her century against Hong Kong and moving past the legendary Mithali Raj.

"What has become so nice to see is that in the last two years, two and a half years, how she has worked on her power game. How she is able to clear the boundary with such ease and confidence. That is such a heartening sign to see," Chopra said. — PTI

Dowman stars for Arsenal in League Cup

LONDON, SEPTEMBER 16 Arsenal can't stop winning. As for big-spending Tottenham, just scoring a goal is a feat in itself this season.

The current gulf between the two north London rivals was highlighted in the English League Cup on Tuesday, with Arsenal fielding almost an entire second-choice lineup and still overwhelming fellow Premier League team Ipswich in a 4-2 win in the third round.

Make that six straight win across all competitions to open the season for Arsenal.

Then there's Tottenham, which lost 3-1 in the pouring rain at Liverpool and isn't getting much return on its incredible $400 million outlay on new players in the summer transfer window.

At least Spurs scored. They haven't managed that in four Premier League games so far this season.

Max Dowman, a 16-year-old prodigy, enhanced his budding reputation with a goal early in each half, while Noni Madueke and Mikel Merino also netted for the English champions as they soared into a 4-0 lead.

"He is only 16 years old and we have to be careful," Arsenal manager Mikel Arteta said of Dowman, an attacking midfielder who last year became the youngest player in Champions League history, at age 15 years and 308 days. "We don't want to stop him, but we need to develop him. We're fully aware of what he needs and he will have full opportunities to play."

Arsenal's impressive strength in depth should enable Arteta's squad to challenge on multiple fronts.

"That's what we want, to face every game, every competition with the same mentality, attitude and desire," Arteta said. — AP

NDMC tightens vending rules in Connaught Place, Janpath

MANIKANT MISHRA

TRIBUNE NEWS SERVICE

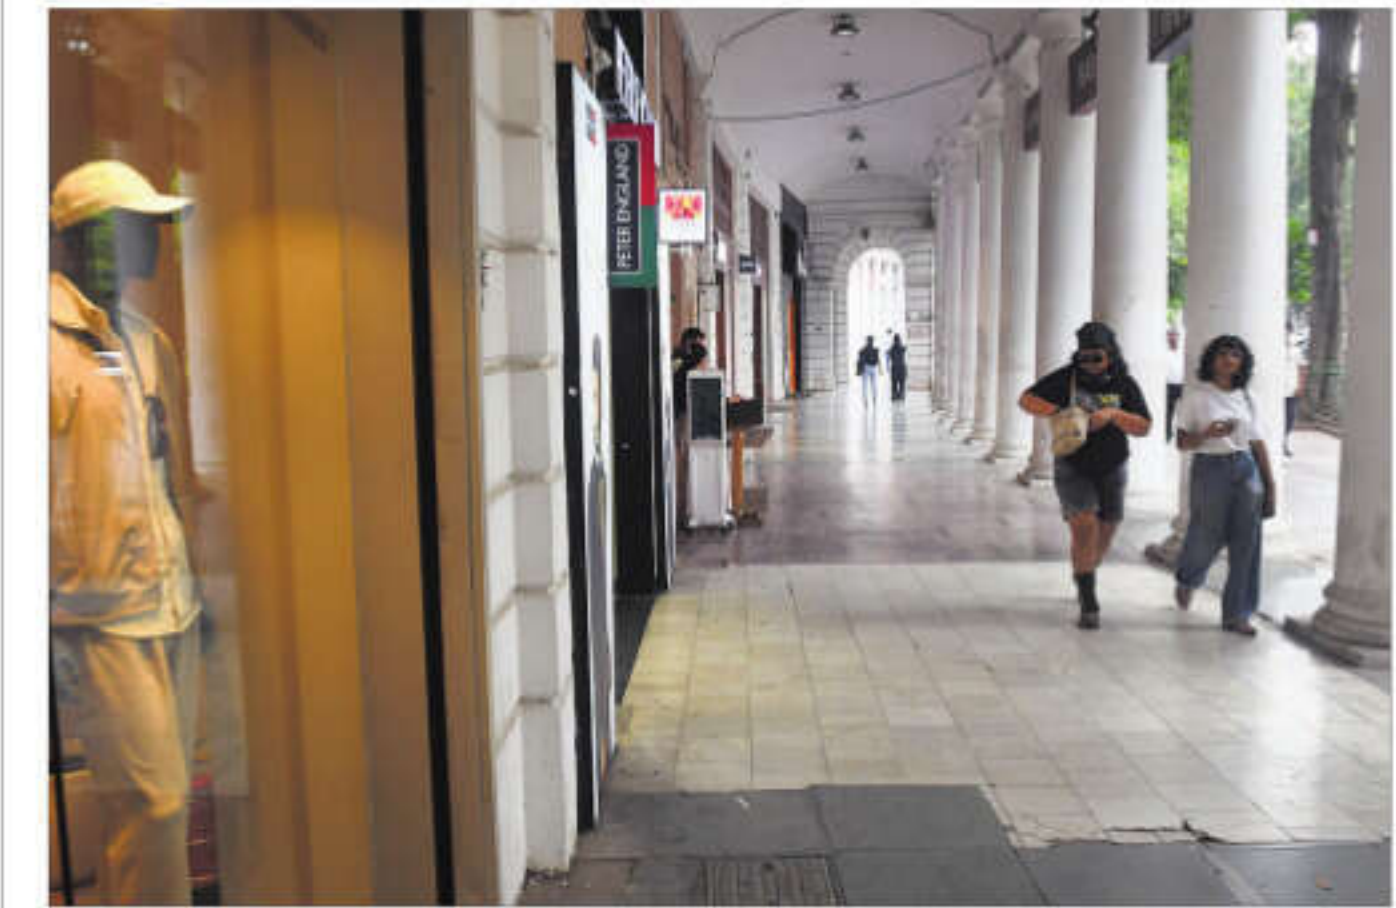

NEW DELHI, SEPTEMBER 16 The brief clearing of Connaught Place (CP) during the two-day BRICS Summit has brought back an old question for Delhi's busiest commercial district, which is that how much public space can be given to street vending without choking pedestrian movement.

The New Delhi Municipal Council (NDMC) has now drawn a stricter line, restricting street vending beyond 6.30 pm in Connaught Place, Janpath, Palika Bazar and other high-footfall markets.

The restriction also covers areas around Regal, Revoli, Hanuman Mandir and Gurudwara Bangla Sahib. Vendors have been told to remove their goods from vending sites after the permitted time and not operate in non-vending zones.

"The vendor shall not carry out any vending in non-vending zones or beyond permissible timings (sunset ie. 6.30

The order also requires vendors to keep a tehbazari certificate with their photograph prominently displayed at the vending site and produce the original when asked by the authorised officials. They

The enforcement burden has also been placed on area inspectors. The NDMC said negligence, inaction or repeated failure to prevent or report violations would invite strict action against officials responsible for compliance.

The move follows newly appointed NDMC Chairman Manoj Kumar Dwivedi seeking public views on making busy commercial hubs more pedestrian-friendly.

After Satya Niketan, a tragedy waiting to happen in Karol Bagh?

GROUND REPORT

RAHUL GAHLAWAT

TRIBUNE NEWS SERVICE

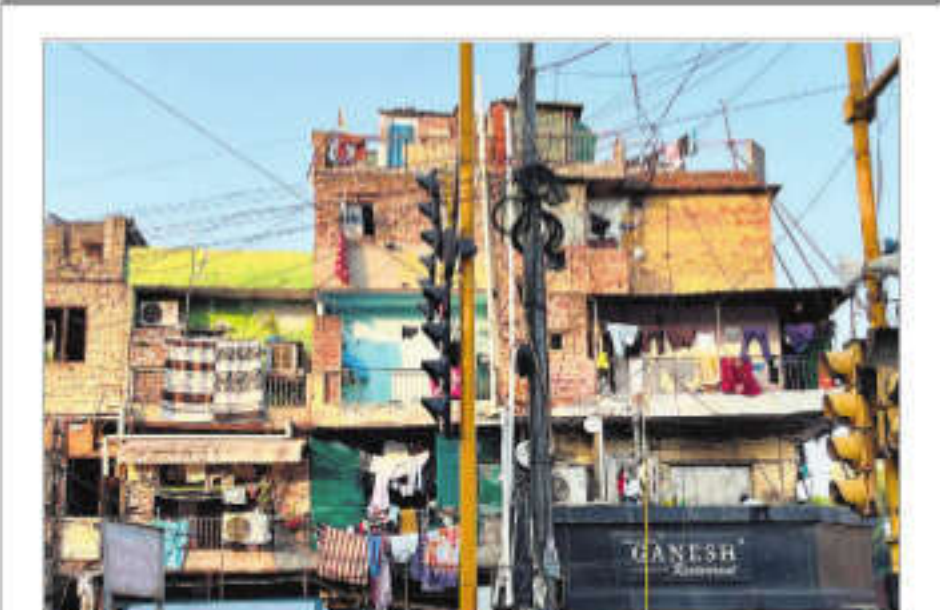

NEW DELHI, SEPTEMBER 16

Weeks after the Satya Niketan building collapse brought Delhi's crumbling residential infrastructure and occupants' safety into sharp focus, another visibly dilapidated complex in the heart of Karol Bagh, national capital's electronic, auto parts and UPSC coaching hub, has raised concerns over the possibility of another tragedy.

After receiving independent tip-offs of gross official neglect and growing encroachments, The Tribune visited the area for a ground check today.

A walk along Karol Bagh's Arya Samaj Road from Mahendra Prakash Gupta Chowk revealed the precarious condition of upper floors of a building being used as a residential space. These dilapidated dangerously perched residential compartments stand above a commercial space called Ganesh Restaurant and are in a visibly poor condition.

The principal opposition party in Delhi AAP alleged that the civic agency is minting money and takes action against such buildings or areas from where they are not getting bribes.

Attempts also appear to have been made to fortify parts of the complex with iron girders, apparently as a temporary measure. Several buildings along the road, identified as property number 2,295 to 2,336, present a particularly worrying picture as the ground floor continues to operate as a restaurant frequented by customers throughout the day.

A visit to the spot shows portions of upper floors clearly deteriorated, nearly waiting to fall, while makeshift support structures have been installed underneath sections of the complex to keep it intact.

The condition of the building in a key market area of Delhi raises questions about whether the building has been inspected by the civic authorities and if the existing temporary support mechanisms are sufficient to ensure the safety of people using the premises and those passing along the road.

The Tribune also spotted that families residing above the restaurant have installed all daily facilities such as air conditioners, desert coolers

NEW DELHI, SEPTEMBER 16

The long-delayed Barapullah Phase 3 elevated corridor is finally ready, nearly 11 years after the project was conceived. The corridor is expected to be dedicated to the public during the Seva Sankalp Seva Abhiyan being organised to mark Prime Minister Narendra Modi's birthday, with the campaign beginning Thursday.

Chief Minister Rekha Gupta had announced a few days ago that the corridor would be dedicated to the public during the campaign. A senior Public Works Department (PWD) official said the corridor has been completed and the government has been informed. The final decision on its opening now rests with the government.

Foundation stone laid in 2014, construction began in 2015

The foundation stone for Barapullah Phase 3 was laid in 2014, while construction began in 2015. The project was originally scheduled for completion by 2017, but several hurdles delayed the work. As a result, the project remained pending for nearly 11 years.

3-km elevated corridor

Under Phase 3, an elevated corridor stretching around 3 km has been built between Mayur Vihar Phase 1 and Sarai Kale Khan. Once opened, it is expected to ease traffic movement along the route and make the journey more convenient for commuters.

Signal-free route to AIIMS

The opening of the corridor is expected to provide a signal-free journey from Mayur Vihar Phase 1 towards AIIMS. Commuters travelling along the route will have fewer traffic signals to negotiate, potentially reducing travel time and improving traffic flow.

Hostels for 10,000 students: NSUI questions timing, ABVP accuses it of politicising issue

TRIBUNE NEWS SERVICE

NEW DELHI, SEPTEMBER 16

The Delhi Government's announcement to construct hostels for 10,000 students, made two days before the Delhi University Students' Union (DUSU) elections, has triggered a political face-off between the Congress' student wing, the National Students' Union of India (NSUI), and the Akhil Bharatiya Vid-yarthi Parishad (ABVP).

While the NSUI questioned the timing and implementation details of the proposal, the ABVP accused the Congress-NSUI of politicising the issue of student accommodation. NSUI national president Vinod Jakhar questioned why the government had not addressed the shortage of safe and affordable student accommodation earlier, particularly after the recent Satya Niketan building collapse. He also sought clarity on the proposed hostel locations, implementation timeline, budget, fee structure and eligibility criteria.

"Why did the Delhi Government not act when students were struggling every day for safe and affordable accommodation? Even after the Satya Niketan incident, what concrete steps were taken to address the hostel crisis? Instead of clear answers and a time-bound plan, students saw publicity and reels," Jakhar said.

He added: "Now, just two days before DUSU voting, the government has announced hostels for 10,000 students.

During DU march, Youth Cong flags shortage of accommodation

Amid concerns over the shortage and affordability of student accommodation in Delhi University (DU), the Indian Youth Congress (IYC) on Wednesday organised a march at the university, demanding safe, affordable and better hostel facilities, particularly for students hailing from outside Delhi. The march, led by IYC national president Uday Bhanu Chib, began at the Arts Faculty building and concluded at Kirori Mal College. Chib interacted with students during the march, and heard their concerns related to the shortage of hostel accommodation, high rents, safety and basic facilities. "A hostel is not a luxury for a student who has come to Delhi from another state or another part of the country, it is a basic necessity. Students should be able to concentrate on their education without worrying about unaffordable rents, unsafe accommodation and inadequate facilities," he said. "The government and the Delhi University administration must stop making announcements and start delivering. Every student deserves safe, affordable and dignified accommodation. The shortage of hostels is directly affecting students from ordinary and economically weaker families, who are being forced to spend a major portion of their family income on private accommodation," he added. Chib said student welfare should remain a key issue in the ongoing DUSU election discourse, and appealed to students to support the NSUI panel.

Delhi Pradesh Youth Congress president Akshay Lakra said students were demanding basic rights rather than favours.

of changing its position after the government announced the proposed hostels.

"From making reels by hammering the debris at the time of the Satya Niketan tragedy to now questioning the announcement of hostels for 10,000 students, the Congress-NSUI has repeatedly sought to politicise issues concerning students. When there was a shortage of hostels, the Congress-NSUI raised questions about it, and now, when hostels are being announced in response to students' demands, it is questioning the proposed solution itself.

"The Congress-NSUI should answer whether it genuinely wants a solution to students' accommodation problems or merely wants to keep the issue alive for political purposes. Congress ruled Delhi for more than five decades after Independence. It should ask its own party what concrete steps were taken during such a long period in office to provide adequate, safe and accessible hostel facilities for students.

"We have demanded the regularisation of vending spaces specially in Connaught place and surrounding areas for a long time. The association has repeatedly requested the NDMC and the police to force compliance with court directions and prevent unauthorised hawkers from occupying public spaces and blocking pedestrian corridors," Badhwar told PTI.

He said a court case was continuing and the civic council had already been directed to clear public spaces.

Traders also pointed to what happened during the BRICS Summit. Connaught Place was considerably less congested and free of hawkers during the two days, but encroachments and garbage had begun appearing again at several spots, they said.

Yet, for shoppers, the issue is not entirely one sided. Anushka, who frequently shops in Connaught Place and Janpath, said this was a much-needed move.

She said, "This was much-needed move because it becomes congested to walk freely and as a girl, it becomes really a big problem. I really welcome this Vendors must display their tehbazari certificates, along with photographs, at their vending sites. Stalls, carts and merchandise must remain within the allotted area, while footpaths and roads must be kept clear for pedestrians and traffic.

The civic body has warned that the violations of the prescribed conditions could lead to the suspension or cancellation of the vending certificates.

Kalyan Bainsla, the man accused of striking woman biker Shivani Chauhan, aka Siya, in Gurugram, and his cousin Lavnish, who was with him in the car during the incident, were remanded in two-day police custody after being produced before a city court on Wednesday.

Speaking to mediapersons on Tuesday night after recording her statement in court, Siya spoke about public statements made by Bainsla, and harsh comments made by his followers against her.

On Sunday, Bainsla, a gym owner, grazed his car with biker Shivani Chauhan, alias Siya, on the Golf Course road, coming at speed from behind. The contact knocked Chauhan off and sent her skidding down the road in a life threatening situation.

Both accused were produced before the court of Magistrate Nidhi Beniwal on Wednesday afternoon. The police had sought two-day custody to recreate the crime scene, and the court subsequently granted the remand.

The next hearing in the matter has been scheduled for September 18.

Meanwhile, defence counsel Lalit Bindal argued that Kalyan had already been in police custody for 24 hours, during which the scene could have been recreated.

"Allowing the remand application filed by the police today, seeking two days of police custody, the court has awarded two days of police custody, with the next hearing scheduled for September 18," Bindal said.

After the incident, I did not want to reveal my identity, but now it has been revealed. I will stand firm for myself. I don't care what their followers are saying; their mentality is simply flawed," Siya said.

Siya added that she had told the court everything about what had happened to her, including how an attempt had allegedly been made on her life.

She added: "I have requested that strict action be taken in this case. I have sustained some injuries, and the doctors have advised me to undergo an MRI and an X-ray examination."

She added that if the accused managed to secure bail within three days, it could not be considered strict action.

"There were two other people in the car and they should be arrested as well. They must be punished. If they aren't punished, such incidents will continue to happen," she said.

113 challans & ₹10.68L fine later, mobike impounded in Gurugram

GURUGRAM, SEPTEMBER 16

The Gurugram traffic police have impounded a motorcycle with 113 pending challans amounting to Rs 10,68,500 in fines. The motorcycle was seized during a vehicle-checking drive at MDI Chowk on Wednesday.

A senior traffic police officer said, as part of a campaign initiated by the department, action was being taken under the provisions of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988, against vehicle owners who had failed to pay challans pending for more than 90 days.

The police are also raising awareness among motorists about pending challans and urging them to make timely payments.

According to the police, ASI Praveen Kumar, the zonal officer posted at MDI Chowk, was conducting a routine vehicle-checking drive with his team when they stopped a motorcycle for inspection. The rider failed to produce the required vehicle documents. "Verification revealed that the motorcycle had 113 pending challans under various provisions of the Motor Vehicles Act, 1988, with a total penalty of Rs 10,68,500. Most of the challans were for riding without a helmet, a valid Pollution Under Control (PUC) certificate or insurance, as well as other traffic violations. In accordance with the law, the traffic police impounded the motorcycle and parked it at the designated impound yard because of the pending challans," said a senior traffic police officer. The Gurugram traffic police appealed to motorists to follow traffic rules, keep essential vehicle documents, including valid insurance and a Pollution Under Control (PUC) certificate, up to date, and ensure timely payment of pending challans. — OC even though their homes present a worn-out look with unplastered walls and visible cracks pointing to the poor health of the building which appears to make a fit case for declaration as "unfit for living". Heavy constructions and encroachments continue to dot the area, locals say, adding that the MCD can verify the violations and fix these.

The Tribune investigated the matter and found that the ownership of the land where this building stands lies with Mercury General Corporation.

This correspondent spoke with the firms' Manager Amit Kumar who said that multiple complaints regarding the dangerous condition of the buildings have been made to the Municipal Corporation of Delhi (MCD), but no action has been taken by the civic agency.

Kumar mentioned that some structures are over a century old. Speaking about the inhabitants of the building, Kumar said that the building has been encroached over a period of time and the residents are not ready to leave the space.

This newspaper tried to contact the MCD for a response but got no answer till the time of filing of this report.

Her Bollywood breakthrough came with Yaar Naa Miley from Kick.

Over the years, her music has frequently drawn from deeply personal emotions, giving her songs an intimate quality that has connected with listeners. That makes Pyaar feel like a meaningful addition. After years of singing about the complicated, painful and searching sides of love, Sandlas is now presenting love through a more personal and celebratory lens — with the person she loves sharing the screen with her! — Mona

Ambiecka Pandit on making Babita Singh Reporting a lived-in story of women, courage and change

NONIKA SINGH

IT's a man's world... we all are acutely aware of this stinging social reality. But it's a rare film which shows us subtle, nuanced, yet emphatic shades of patriarchy without shouting from the pulpit. Babita Singh Reporting is one such film which is creating a virtual storm what with every other Insta post delving into its many recesses and layers.

National Award winning Ambiecka Pandit, director of the film might not have anticipated the overwhelming positive response to her debut feature directorial, but the lawyer turned filmmaker understands the dynamics of why and how the film has resonated so well. She reasons, "There is a Baby in me, in Nimisha Sajayan who plays her as well, as all those women who can relate to her."

But what is more gratifying for her is the response of male audiences who have called out Sharad for being uncaring, unkind and doing the bare minimum. She rues, "Society expects women's career to be secondary to her domestic identity while for men their professional commitment always takes precedence."

Interestingly, when reading Amita Vyas' script what fascinated Ambiecka the most was her character's vulnerability and how beautifully Amita had changed the definition of courage. As the film captures everyday patriarchy, what Ambiecka finds most dangerous is women internalising it and self-censuring for "it means patriarchy is really working and tentacles have taken root among the subjects themselves."

Among the film's many revealing scenes the one in which Sharad starts to cry and plays the victim card is what truly hit Ambiecka home and she quips, "Often the predator pretends to be a victim and starts to cry foul. This is something I had experienced and I had a great time directing this scene."

Perhaps this is what Sudip Sharma, producer of the film, had in mind when he felt that a woman would be more suitable to direct such a subject. Ambiecka adds, "Though cinema can't be seen through gendered lens, as a woman this is a lived-in experience for me and there is no level of separation between art and me."

Of course, the purpose of cinema according to her is not to educate, only ask relevant questions, may be examine and reflect. In this reflection those who felt the investigation arm of the film was not as gripping as Babita's journey, Ambiecka is a bit piqued. She insists, "The film was not meant to be a thriller and I can understand if fans of the genre are disappointed. Investigation was only a vehicle. It isn't even a conventional cop drama and was always written as coming of age film of Babita, both as a cop and as a woman." Nimisha, however, was always the first choice for playing this diffident yet brave cop. "Nimisha is a brilliant actor whose work I had seen in Chola and The Great Indian Kitchen."

While almost everything about patriarchy annoys her; mansplaining, this constant urge to talk down to women condescendingly she finds most off-putting. Yes, male-dominated film industry has similar undercurrents but as she puts it, "not in a disruptive manner."

Besides, she has been fortunate enough to find support and guidance in makers like Suresh Triveni, Vikramaditya Motwane and Sudip Sharma, all of whom she rates as not just great makers but wonderful human beings. Suresh and Vikramaditya even produced her second short Under The Waters and she even got a chance to direct an episode of Vikramaditya's acclaimed series Black Warrant. Despite her legal background, she doesn't think a courtroom drama would be more up her alley. Rather she wants to try all kinds of genres. Only subject she would say no to is; misogynistic content. "I won't judge my characters but if the politics of the film does not align with mine, it would definitely be a big no."

On the surface like Baby, Ambiecka too might come across a gentle, soft-spoken person but has a mind that refuses to bend to any set rules. Watch out for Ambiecka Pandit directing in future projects. And in case you have yet not watched Babita Singh Reporting on Prime Video, check out Baby's transformation, which runs oh so deep and real. More than one scene packs a punch and will stay with you for times to come...

Nag, a high profile actor who also dabbled in politics and served as a minister in Karnataka, grew up in a religious family in Bhatkal in coastal Karnataka. He was sent to Mumbai for higher education. His early influences of growing up in a math shaped his interest in stories. While in Mumbai, Nag felt like a fish out of water but gradually became drawn to the theatre movement there. He started doing plays in Konkani, Hindi and Marathi for five years. There he met and was influenced by people like Satyadev Dubey, Girish Karnad and Anmol Palekar.

Nag made his cinema debut with 1973 Kannada movie Sankalpa and gradually became an integral part of the parallel cinema there in the 1970s and 1980s. He was a part of popular Doordashan serial Malgudi Days, the TV adaptation of R K Narayan's popular work.

Nag's collaboration with Dubey led to classics Ankur, Nishant, Manthan, Bhumika, Kondura and Kalyug followed. His major hits in Kannada include Bayalu Daari, Na Nimma Bidalare, Chandavana Gombe, Aruma Raaga, Mududida Taavare Aralithu, Breaking News and Dashamukha, Godhi Banna and KGF Last year, Nag was honoured with the Padma Bhushan. — PTI

RAVLEEN KAUR

There was a little girl who watched Govinda's Raja Babu and was convinced that one day, she would become everything. A lawyer. A doctor. A pilot. Perhaps even all three. For Suchi Birgi, watching Govinda wasn't merely entertainment. It was a possibility. Today, sitting in Mumbai, she is still chasing that same childlike possibility, only the costumes have been replaced by characters, auditions and cameras. At present, Birgi is part of Bareilly Ke Bacchan on Colors TV and JioHotstar, while also working on a SonyLIV series.

Born in Kanpur and raised in Chandigarh, Birgi started with theatre after school. Suchetak Rangmanch in Mohali became her training ground. A Hindi short film with R Swami followed, and then came an advertising campaign with Ayushmann Khurrana — something she had manifested all along. "On November 18, 2023, I moved to the city of dreams. The city that has something for everyone," she says as her eyes sparkle.

Punjab, meanwhile, gave her a memorable breakthrough. Darya Walle by Rangle Sardar, featuring Birgi in a striking no-makeup look, crossed 10 million YouTube views and became a staple soundtrack at Punjabi weddings. The song opened doors to more regional projects, but Mumbai remained her larger canvas. However, she says, "I'm open to opportunities wherever they come from. For me, the destination matters less than the work. Whatever is written for me, I'm ready for it."
